Veterans Day ★ Salute ★

By SCOTT JACKSON

Honoring, appreciating and cherishing the service and sacrifice made by those who serve or have served in the armed forces is key to making the United States the country it is today, the commander of Quincy's Navy support center said Monday at a ceremony commemorating Veterans Day.

Lt. Comm. Ryan Segger, the commanding officer of Navy Operational Support Center Quincy, spoke Monday at the World War II monument at Merrymount

Park during the city's annual Veterans Day observance. The ceremony was preceded by a one-mile parade from Quincy High School to the park that paused briefly at the Doughboy Statue on Furnace Brook Parkway, which honors the men and women of Quincy who served during World War I, for a wreath-laying ceremony.

Developer To Alter South Quincy Condo Plan

By SCOTT JACKSON

The applicant seeking to replace a South Quincy barroom with a 48-unit condominium building will go back to the drawing board after the initial proposal got a chilly reception from area residents.

The owners of Southside Tavern, located at 73 Liberty St., had proposed building the six-story, 48-unit building on site. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci hosted a community meeting on the proposal Nov. 6 at the Morrisette Post; some 45 residents were in attendance.

Robert Harnais, the attorney representing the site's owner, said they would go back to the drawing board after residents raised concerns about the size of the project during the hour-long meeting.

"We obviously have to go back and rethink this," Harnais said at the close of the meeting. "Your job was to do exactly what you did - beat some sense into us to say, 'OK, we have to look at this differently,' and that's what we're going to do."

Harnais said he would reach out to Palmucci once the new plan comes together and would be open to a second community meeting to go over the new concept.

"I can commit to you that, before we move forward on anything, we will go back to Brian, let him know the changes, and we will run it by you again," Harnais said.

Harnais had opened the meeting saying he wanted the community's input into the project before it goes before city boards for approval.

"I personally do not believe in putting a square peg in a round hole. You people have to help us make that square peg fit nice and properly," he said. "I know what they are proposing here is a large project, but I also know what they are proposing here isn't going to be what they get. We have to

Joseph Clifford Lays Wreath At Tomb Of The Unknowns

Joseph Clifford of Quincy was recently given the honor of helping to place a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, VA.

Clifford is a proud resident of the City of Quincy and a permanent fixture at every Christmas parade and veterans parade. Joe and some family members recently attended a reunion of The Old Guard Association in Washington, D.C. and Arlington, VA. He was a member of the Old Guard, formally, the 3rd U.S. Infantry Regiment. The Old Guard represents the U.S. Army in all things ceremonial and is the face of the Army across the United States and the world. Duties of the Old Guard is involved include daily funerals in Arlington National Cemetery and the 24-hour guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. It is the excellence of the Old Guard that leaves the public in awe.

This year at The Old Guard Association (TOGA) reunion on Sept. 27, the presenters of the wreath were The Old Guard Association President Flip Godfrey and Joe Clifford. This honor is usually given to U.S. presidents, dignitaries and generals. Joe was selected because of his faithful service to his country and the regiment more than 65 years ago.

Offering flowers at a memorial is a ritual that occurs around the world, symbolizing the beauty and brevity of life. Floral tributes are made each day at Arlington National Cemetery – at funeral services, public ceremonies, and individual visits to a loved one's gravesite, but only very special individuals are ever chosen to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Both the Old Guard Association and the leadership of the 3rd Infantry knew that Joe Clifford was that very special kind of person.

Joe was asked the night before the wreath laying ceremony to participate in it. He was very surprised, honored and quite emotional. He remarked that it was unforgettable. He said that this was one of the greatest days of his life, right behind marrying Joan and fathering his eight children.

Wins 6th Term With 69.15% Of The Vote; Will Become Longest Serving Mayor In January

Koch Swept All 31 Precincts In Historic Win

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch cruised to a sixth term in this month's municipal election and will become Quincy's longest-serving mayor once he begins a new term in January.

Other incumbents running for re-election made a clean sweep on Nov. 5, and two former office holders were elected to their old seats.

Koch, of 249 Newbury Ave., received 9,377 votes in this year's election, or 69.15 percent of the total votes cast in the mayoral race. His vote total was more than twice that of challenger Brenda Ryan of 14 Cranch St., who was making her first run for public office. Ryan finished with 3,902 votes, or 28.78 percent. There were 281 write-in votes cast in the election.

Koch outpolled Ryan in all 31 polling precincts en route to a sixth term.

"It's obviously a great feeling," Koch said shortly after being re-elected. "You work hard every day and nights like this give you the affirmation that you are getting the job done. This is an outstanding community and I am proud to be able to continue to serve."

Koch, 56, was first elected mayor in 2007 and was re-elected to two-year terms in 2009, 2011 and 2013. In 2015, he was elected to a four-year term – the first in Quincy's history after voters approved doubling the mayoral term in a referendum two years prior.

Koch will surpass two other mayors who served for 12 years – Amelio Della Chiesa and James Sheets – to become Quincy's longest-serving chief executive when he begins his new term in January.

Koch said he had not put much thought into becoming the longest-serving mayor prior to his win, but, on election night, said, "to be in that kind of company is special."

Koch and Ryan finished first and second, respectively, in the September preliminary election. Koch received 65.22 percent of the vote in the preliminary and Ryan finished with 19.48

Access the equity in your home or free up cash monthly Here's how...

Maybe you'd love to access the equity in your home but you're nervous about taking out an adjustable home equity line with interest rates rising. Or maybe you went with a shorter term and that monthly payment has become a burden. This is something that could work for you – refinance into a new 30-year mortgage. With 30-year rates still so low, lower than fixed-rate equity loans, it's definitely a home equity loan/line alternative. And also a way to free up cash monthly and make your life easier. Would a new 30-year loan be right for you? It's easy to find out. Apply online or call Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750. Colonial Federal, a bank with ideas.

Salute To World War II Vets Dec. 7

Nov. 15th Last Day To Inform City Of Participation In Ceremony

By GEORGE NICHOLSON
Director, Quincy Veterans Services

When you plan something for a future date, time has a way of creeping up on us much quicker than anticipated.

The ceremony recognizing Quincy's World War II veterans is now only three weeks away.

It, in very short order, will be time for my office to stop advertising this event and start its the final preparations. The deadline for participation in this event is Friday, Nov. 15th. The ceremony itself takes place in the Quincy High School auditorium at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 7th (Pearl Harbor Day). This is our last chance to recognize and honor those WWII veterans with ties to our Quincy community.

Most of the WWII veterans that I have known thus far during my 46 years of advocacy and service to veterans and their families, have, almost to a man - or woman, have been reluctant to talk about their individual contributions and experiences while in the uniform of our Armed Forces during the Second World War. None that I have known has ever considered him or herself a hero. Few, if any, can easily reconcile with being referred to as a member of America's Greatest Generation, but, they are.

Whether they returned from WWII and started a business or a factory of just came back to their old job and settled down again, here in Quincy to raise their families, all of them are all of the above. This ceremony is not intended to single out or honor any particular living WWII veteran. It is simply one more opportunity to recognize those participants, with a connection to Quincy, who took part of the history that was WWII. The summer months of 2020 will reach the 75th anniversary of the end of WWII.

So few of these men and women still remain with us and they depart from us in greater and greater numbers every day. For this ceremony, we are asking any WWII vet who can, on his or her own or with escort, who entered the service from Quincy or lived in Quincy after service to come onto the stage at Quincy High and allow your fellow citizens to extend their appreciation for your service. If you can make it and join us on stage, I ask that you contact my office ASAP (keep in mind the Nov. 15th cut-off deadline).

We will have some tokens of our city's appreciation for and pride in you. We will have the Massachusetts Secretary of Veterans Services among several other dignitaries, both military and civilian, in attendance in your honor. You will be greeted, supported and escorted by uniformed members of today's military services and others.

There will be some musical entertainment, a video presentation during the ceremony, (which we will try to keep to about an hour) and then a light luncheon served on site right after the ceremony. As part of this ceremony also, we would like to honor those living veterans who cannot attend and Quincy veterans who are no longer with us. If you cannot attend, you can send us a picture of yourself, in uniform or civilian clothes, from any period in your life and we will make it part of a video presentation near the end of the ceremony.

Quincy saw about 8,500 of its citizens serve in WWII and well over 97 percent of them are now gone. There is no way that we can possibly even attempt to recognize such a large number in a single ceremony - and the primary purpose of this one is to recognize those who are still with us. However, we will have a video segment at the end of the ceremony whereby we will display the names and pictures of any deceased Quincy veteran whose family would like to see their loved one included in this very special ceremony, if a picture of that veteran is sent to my office by the deadline: Friday, Nov. 15th.

Finally, the Quincy High School auditorium holds about 700 people. The Mayor's Office, as well as mine, would love to see that auditorium filled with Quincy families and other citizens as a truly dignified and deserving display of respect for all those WWII veterans whose presence, images and memories we get to honor on this occasion. There is a lot yet to be set in place for this ceremony and we sincerely hope that it will be worth the recognition and memory that we seek to create, so REMEMBER...the absolute entry cut-off date for participation in this event is FRIDAY, NOV. 15th!

Abigail Adams Birthday Celebration Nov. 22 At United First Parish Church

'Abigail Adams And the World Of Slavery'

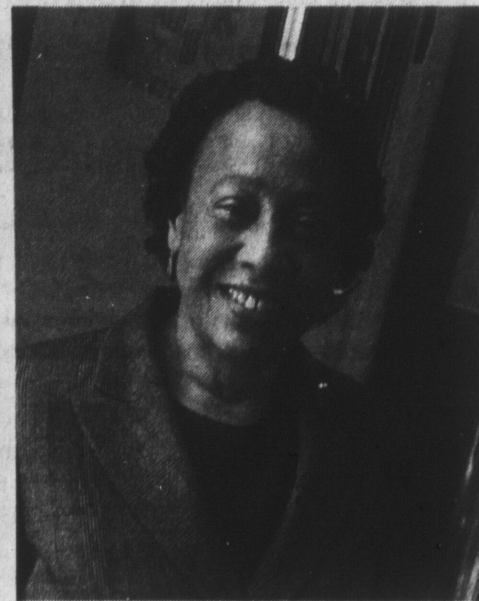

The History and Visitors Program at United First Parish Church, Church of the Presidents announces a special evening of historical programming to support the History and Visitors Program and to honor the 275th birthday anniversary of Abigail Adams.

The program will be held Friday, Nov. 22 at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Doors open for the event at 6 p.m.

At 7 p.m. Professor Kerima Lewis will present her talk entitled "Abigail Adams and the World of Slavery." Although it is well known that John and Abigail Adams did not personally own slaves, what is not well known is that slavery touched the life of Abigail Adams in several ways. This talk takes a close look at Abigail's familial connections to Atlantic world slavery to increase understanding of the institution.

ABIGAIL ADAMS

introduce the enslaved persons with whom Abigail interacted and to trace the transatlantic journey which brought captive West Africans to New England by way of the West Indies. Professor Lewis teaches at Emerson and Quincy Colleges. She holds a doctorate in history, a law degree and a master's degree in social work and has been a Massachusetts Historical Society Fellow.

Other components of the evening's program include the opportunity for participants to contribute their thoughts and reflections to a larger exhibit of her words in the church's crypt corridor and to lay a flower on the First Lady's tomb. A reception will follow Professor Lewis' presentation with beer and wine provided by Craig's Café.

Admission to the event will be by donation and all donations support the History and Visitors Program at United First Parish Church. Tickets may be purchased online at Eventbrite (search for "Remembering Abigail at 275") or at the door that evening. The suggested starting donation is $10.

The first 100 donations of $10 will receive an official Abigail commemorative stamp and envelope from its first day of issue on June 14, 1985. All donations above $10 will also receive a Purifications chocolate of their choice (milk or dark chocolate) with an image of Abigail Adams.

Scenes From Yesterday

THE WOLLASTON COAL Company that was located at 33 Weston Ave. alongside the railroad tracks in Wollaston published this 1912 advertising postcard. The company specialized in Lehigh and Lackawanna coals from eastern Pennsylvania that were widely used at the time in home heating furnaces. As the ad proclaims, this new Quincy company was one of the first to use motor trucks for quick delivery service. The business later became the Ralph Coal Company owned by two brothers from Wollaston. They continued retail coal operations at this location until the late 1950s. Although they carried a wide variety of coals and coke, Ralph Coal specialized in very hard and shiny Pennsylvania anthracite they marketed as "Blue Coal." It was lightly sprinkled with blue powder for effect. The powder had nothing to do with the fact that the coal burned naturally with a very little flame that had a blue hue. Before the wide spread use of oil and natural gas for home heating fuels, there were over a dozen companies selling coal and coke in Quincy.

Voters Oust Plan E, Bring Back Plan A

Quincy will return to the Plan A form of government in 1958 as a result of Tuesday's election when the voters discarded Plan E and ousted three of seven city councilors.

Plan A won over Plan E, 14,378 to 12,851, as Councilors David J. Crowley, Alfred G. Helfrich and Frank E. MacDonald lost their seats to Thomas S. Burgin, James R. McIntyre and Charles L. Shea.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and Councillors David S. McIntosh, Carl W. Anderson and Edna B. Austin retained their seats as 65.2 percent of the voters went to the polls.

McIntyre finished third in the election with 14,187 votes. McIntyre, 25, and still a law school student, is the youngest man elected to the council in 25 years. He was wounded during the Korean War in which he served as a Marine Corps officer.

Shea, 28, won election to the council on his second try. A Boston College graduate he finished fifth polling 12,116.

The seventh and final seat on the council was won by incumbent Edna B. Austin who polled 12,058 votes, edging out 10-year council veteran Crowley by 102 votes. Crowley received 11,956 votes and was considering asking for a recount.

Thanks Housing Authority For Restoring Shed Memorial

In 2007, my wife and I came to Quincy to see the memorial to Daniel Shed in the Palmer Street rotary, Snug Harbor. It had been vandalized by that time, but it was nice to see it anyway.

At that time we met Margaret Milne at the Quincy Housing Authority. She told us that the memorial was to be restored in the near future. I left my card with her and asked her to let me know when that happened.

Twelve years later she sent me an e-mail telling me that it had been restored. I couldn't believe that she still had my information or for that matter, even remembered that we existed.

We came to the re-dedication Sept. 20th. It was very well done. The Palmer Street rotary has been turned into a very attractive small park with walkways, benches, and landscaping.

As a descendant of Daniel Shed, I felt honored. The people at the Quincy Housing Authority couldn't have been more hospitable. It was so nice to actually meet some of my very distant "cousins" who also attended the re-dedication. We really appreciate the Quincy Housing Authority restoring the Daniel Shed Memorial.

I can't praise Margaret Milne enough for her part in the restoration of the memorial, and the way she treated the extended Shedd family. An "atta boy" is probably all she will ever receive, but it is not nearly enough.

Perdios Humbled By Support For Her School Seat Bid

I wanted to take a minute to thank all of my fellow Quincy residents who came out to vote on Election Day, as well as those who voted by absentee ballot.

Although I came up a little short this time around in the School Committee race, I am humbled by the 5,990 people across the city that believed in me and gave me their vote. To you I say, this is not the end of the road. I promise, as I said on the campaign trail, that even though I lost the election, I will continue to advocate for the kids and families of Quincy from the sidelines.

To my family, friends, and loyal supporters who generously donated their time, effort, and hard-earned dollars to my campaign, I am immensely grateful, and I thank you all from the bottom of my heart.

I also want to thank all the amazing people I met for the first time at their door. Each of you made me a better candidate, and a better advocate for our schools, by taking the time to share your experiences, suggestions, ideas, and questions with me.

I firmly believe discussions and decisions are made better by including more voices and perspectives, and I will continue to offer mine to better our school system and our city for our children.

Thank you again.

Austrian-born soprano Ute Gfrerer will present "Weill/Lenya: An Unusual Love Story" to open this year's season of Milton Community Concerts on Saturday Nov. 23.

The concert will take place in the historic Meetinghouse at First Parish of Milton, 535 Canton Ave. Gfrerer will be joined by pianist Timothy Steele.

Recognized as one of the world's leading interpreters of the music of Kurt Weill, Gfrerer will share the remarkable love story of this German composer and his wife Lotte Lenya, including the earliest days of their relationship, their immigration to America, and beyond, using pictures, quotes, music, and stories. Songs to be performed include "Mack the Knife", "Pirate Jenny", "Speak Low", "Alabama Song", "The Saga of Jenny", and many more.

Gfrerer has been a successful international soloist

She previously performed a Valentine's Day Cabaret for Milton Community Concerts in 2016.

Tickets for this concert are $20 general/$15 senior/free for 18 and under (available at the door only). There is free parking and the venue is accessible. For more information visit miltoncommunityconcerts.com.

For Unto Us A Child Is Born

By DR. JOHN W. NIELSON

Director, ENC Music

In these days when musical hits only stay at the top of the charts for weeks, it is incredible that every year, for hundreds of thousands of people in the world, Christmas is not complete unless they get to hear or to sing Messiah – written by George Frideric Handel over 250 years ago. But then, much about the Messiah is incredible – both the Oratorio and the Man of Nazareth it celebrates.

It's incredible, for instance, that Messiah has been sung by choirs as large as 4,000 with hundreds of instruments and as small as a couple of dozen and a harpsicord. It's incredible that since 1742 – it has been performed every single year to audiences all over the world. It's incredible, that the whole Oratorio that takes well over 2 hours to sing – (solos, choruses, and instrumental parts) – was written in just 24 days.

On Sunday, Nov. 24th at 4 p.m. at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, Handel's Messiah will be sung on the campus of Eastern Nazarene for the 82nd time. The performance is returning after being absent for several years, through a partnership between ENC and the Quincy Choral Society.

Under the direction of Joshua Rohde, the Messiah performance will feature soloists, a choir of over 120 voices, and a 22-piece orchestra. We are excited for this opportunity to have a performance of Messiah back on our campus.

Tickets are $20 and can be purchased at brownpapertickets.com. For more information, contact John Nielson at john.nielson@enc.edu or 617-745-3526.

'Classic Campfire Cookout' Saturday

The Shalom Children Activity Program (SCAP), a year-long program sponsored by a collaborative partnership of South Shore synagogues and Jewish organizations, will hold its next event, "Classic Campfire Cookout, Singing & Storytelling," on Saturday, Nov. 16, from 5:15-7:45 p.m., at Temple Beth David of the South Shore, 1060 Randolph St., Canton, and Ponkapoag Pond in the Blue Hills.

Families with children up to age 8 who are looking for fun, social, engaging activities infused by Jewish values and experiences are invited to a classic campfire with all the fixin's. Has it been a while since you ate hot dogs and hamburgers, listened to stories, sang songs and ate s'mores by a nighttime campfire? Come breathe in the cool autumn air, enjoy ending Shabbat with Havdallah under the stars, and share this classic "love of the outdoors" experience with your child and other families with children.

The schedule: 5:45-6:15: Kosher hot dogs and hamburgers cookout with veggie option by request (BYO blanket or lawn chair); 6:15-7 p.m.: short stroll down to Ponkapoag Pond for storytelling (nothing frightening!); 7-7:45 p.m.: Sing classic and new campfire songs and make your own s'mores. Check-in is from 5:15-5:30 p.m. The program is free and begins at 5:30 p.m.

This event is for families with children up to 8 years old (siblings welcome), and is free, but registration is required. For directions, visit Google.com/maps/place/Temple+Beth+David+of+the+South+Shore.

The event has a maximum of 50 children, with priority by date of registration. Registration for this event is at: <http://shalomcap.com/?event=classic-campfire-cookout-singing-storytelling>. For questions or concerns, contact: shalomchildrenactivityprogram@gmail.com or visit our website at www.shalomcap.com.

For parents looking for some kind of Jewish family connection, SCAP's programs and events are a way to experience, create, and celebrate together while meeting other families living in your area. No-cost once-a-month programs take place through June 2020 from South Boston to the South Shore, and participants are welcome to come to one or all.

SCAP's partners include Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, Milton; Temple Beth David of the South Shore, Canton; Temple Beth Shalom, Hull; Cong. Sha'aray Shalom, Hingham; B'nai Tikvah, Canton; Temple B'nai Shalom, Braintree; and JCC of Greater Boston. Shalom Children Activity Program is supported in part by a grant by CJP's South Area Planning Committee.

Concert Celebrates Abigail Adams' 275th Birthday Sunday

All are welcome to attend a concert in celebration of First Lady Abigail Adams' 275th birth anniversary at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, from 2:30 to 4:15 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 17.

Adams was the first Second Lady and the second First Lady of the country, and was born on Nov. 22, 1744 in Weymouth and died Oct. 28, 1818 in Quincy. She was the first woman to be the wife of a U.S. President (John Adams) and mother of a U.S. President (John Quincy Adams.) The late Barbara Bush is the only other woman to have this distinction.

In addition to birthday cake, we will enjoy a concert of music Abigail likely enjoyed, performed by Sylvia Berry and Dale Mun-schy on restored period instruments. They will also share some interesting and educational thoughts about the music and instruments.

Berry, a Philadelphia native, is one of North America's leading exponents of the fortepiano, as well as other historical keyboard instruments, including the harpsichord, virginal, and clavichord. Hailed by Early Music America as "a complete master of rhetoric, whether in driving passagework or [in] cantabile adagios," she is known not only for her exciting performances but for her engaging commentary about the music and the instruments she plays.

Abbey Road 50th Anniversary Topic At Crane Library Nov. 19

This year is the 50th anniversary of the release of the iconic Beatles album, Abbey Road. Join local music professor Delvyn Case at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 19 at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, as he gives listeners a guided tour through this ground-breaking work of art.

Regarded by many as one of the greatest albums of all time, there is always more to discover on repeated listenings, and participants are sure to hear something new with the insights they'll gain at this program.

Case is an associate professor of music at Wheaton College and music director of The Great Woods Symphony Orchestra. He also has given lectures at the library on the Beatles' White Album and facilitated a series on how to listen to classical music.

Fashion Tech Students Visit Brooks Brothers

In partnership with Quincy Asian Resources, Inc (QARI pronounced as "quarry") Workforce Enterprise and Youth Department, Quincy High School Fashion Technology teacher Robin Kaplan, led 22 students from the program to visit the Brooks Brothers - Southwick production site in Haverhill.

Students were greeted by Jim Murphy, Brooks Brothers manager of Manufacturing, who presented on the history of Southwick and Brooks Brothers. Then Murphy gave them a walk-through of the suit production process and discussed how piecework was done in the garment manufacturing industry.

The students had the opportunity to understand the complexity of a garment being created, but they also got to see the strength and diversity of the Brooks Brothers workforce.

"There are over 10 different languages being spoken in this production site. It is truly a united nation at Brooks Brothers," said Iris Acosta, People Services Specialist from Brooks Brothers Human Resources.

Students in the Quincy High Fashion Technology program can take the fashion design courses as an elective that trains students in sewing techniques and construction methods. Courses versed in the influences, history, and art of fashion ensures that students create a portfolio which can help them gain admittance to competitive fashion programs. Every May, students have an opportunity to showcase their work at fashion shows hosted in Quincy and the Massachusetts State House.

"I am very grateful for QARI and Brooks Brothers to give our students this opportunity to visit this state of the art manufacturing site. I am also glad to hear the Brooks Brothers team reinforce techniques that I always remind my students during class," said Robin Kaplan, Quincy High Fashion Tech teacher.

"I always wanted to become a fashion designer and to continue my education in fashion in New York after high school," said one of the Quincy High Fashion Tech students.

In 2018, Brooks Brothers celebrated 200 years of its legacy as the first ready-to-wear fashion company in America and is a leader in the fashion industry for innovation and high-quality production. That same year, Brooks Brothers partnered with QARI's Workforce Enterprise, a commitment to provide workforce recruitment and training, integrated social and adult education services, and employee assistance programs to the Asian and immigrant workforce.

"QARI's Youth department has been partnering with Quincy Public Schools for many years to provide youth leadership and mentoring programs," said Rockey Chan, Youth Program Manager of QARI. "We work hand in hand with our partners, like Quincy Public Schools and Brooks Brothers, to bring various resources and opportunities to help inspire our next generation."

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL fashion technology students get a close look of the suit production process at Brooks Brothers during a recent visit to the company's Southwick production site in Haverhill. They also learned how piecework is done in the garment manufacturing industry. Courtesy Photos

Recipes For Thanksgiving And After Turkey Day

Holiday Food Ideas From Marie & Suzie

Sweet Potato Casserole

By MARIE

Whether it's a simple dinner or a holiday dinner, I am always looking for new ideas for interesting, tasty and different side dishes.

With Thanksgiving right around the corner, this recipe for Sweet Potato Casserole was exactly what I was looking for. I got this tried and true recipe from my niece, Jean, who hosts the most fantastic Sunday and Holiday Dinners. Your families will love this dish as much as mine did!

Preheat oven to 350 degrees; grease a baking dish with cooking spray or melted butter or use a brush to brush dish with vegetable oil

- 6 sweet potatoes - peeled and cut into bite sized cubes
- 4 teaspoons olive oil
- 3 tablespoons of butter (melted - you can use a microwave)
- 2 tablespoons of brown sugar
- 2 teaspoon of cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 pinch of ground ginger
- Sea salt to taste

Peel and dice the sweet potatoes into bite-sized cubes.

In a separate bowl, mix the brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and sea salt all together. Add the olive oil and melted butter to the dry ingredients and mix well.

Place the diced potatoes in a prepared baking dish. Pour the spice mixture evenly over the potatoes.

Add more brown sugar if preferred. Toss to coat evenly.

Bake in oven for 60 minutes and stir the sweet potatoes once or twice during roasting. This is a very pretty and colorful dish! Enjoy!

Herbed Quinoa And Wild Rice Stuffing

By SUSIE

Quinoa and wild rice are loaded with protein to keep you full and fiber to keep your digestive tract running smooth.

Bread stuffing certainly is delicious but making a stuffing like this alongside traditional corn bread or bread stuffing gives you and guests the choice of still having their comfort foods while upgrading the ingredients.

This is key during the holiday season to avoid digestive upset and the dreaded weight gain. Flavorful herbs such as sage, thyme, oregano, parsley, rosemary...etc aren't only fragrant and add incredible depth to foods but they are also rich in antioxidants that can improve circulation, reduce inflammation and even help prevent certain cancers.

So don't stress over your holiday meals. Just rethink ingredients and recipes!

HERBED QUINOA AND WILD RICE STUFFING

- 2 cups wild and brown rice mix
- 1 cup Quinoa
- 2 tablespoons olive oil, 1 tablespoon pasture butter (I love Kerrygold)
- 2 very finely chopped medium onions
- 3 stalks chopped celery
- 1 large chopped carrot
- 2 granny smith apples, diced
- 2 large minced garlic cloves
- 2 tablespoons EACH chopped fresh sage, and thyme.
- 3 tablespoons chopped fresh rosemary

- 1 teaspoon sea salt (I love using Herbare seasoned salt) and pepper to taste
- ½ cup organic apple juice
- 4 cups organic chicken broth

In a half cup measuring cup, add about equal amounts of dried cranberries, chopped walnuts and chopped cashews or almonds (1/2 cup total)

In a large heavy pot heat oil and butter. Add onion, celery and carrots and cook until tender. Add the salt, pepper, apples, 1 tablespoon each of sage and thyme and cook a bit until sizzling. Now add the juice and broth and bring to boil.

Add in wild rice and brown rice mix and cook for 45 - 50 minutes. Now add the quinoa and the rest of the sage and thyme. Cover and cook until quinoa is done, about 15 minutes. Now add your nuts and cranberries and rosemary and stir well to combine.

Season to taste at this time. It may need more salt and pepper. Preheat oven to 350 and place stuffing in greased 9 by 13 inch baking dish. (Do not press down keep fluffy) Cover with foil and add some pats of butter. Bake 20 minutes then take foil off and bake about 10 more minutes.

Caramelized Butternut Squash

By MARIE

There is something very special about Thanksgiving Day. The abundance of special holiday foods is everywhere.

We cook and bake all kinds of dishes to make the day memorable and special for our families and friends, keeping everyone's different favorites and appetites in mind. Today's recipe for Caramelized Butternut Squash is sure to become a Holiday favorite!

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees, grease a baking pan

- 2 medium butternut squash - 4 to 5 pounds total

(*Remember you can buy packages of fresh, pre-peeled, pre-cut squash to save you work and time)

- 6 tablespoons unsalted butter melted
- ¼ cup light brown sugar, packed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees.

If you are making the squash from scratch instead of buying it all peeled and cut peel the squash and cut in half lengthwise and remove the seeds.

Cut into pieces about 1 and ¼ to 1 and ½ inches and place on a prepared baking dish or cookie sheet.

In a bowl add melted butter, brown sugar, salt and pepper and toss all together until well blended.

Spread squash in a single layer on the baking pan.

Roast 45 to 55 minutes until squash is tender and glaze begins to caramelize.

Turn squash a few times with a spatula to be sure it browns evenly. Serve hot.

Five Ingredient Corn Casserole

By MARIE

There is nothing like eating sweet, fresh, buttery corn on the cob on a warm summer

with

day. When summer is over you can still enjoy the great taste of corn - just a little differently.

I was given this recipe for Corn Casserole from my daughter, Ann Marie and I like it because it has five easy ingredients with items most of us already have at home in our kitchens. The only thing about this recipe is that it uses Jiffy Mix and I am a "from scratch" cook, but when you try and taste today's recipe you will be delighted with the results.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees; grease an 8 x 8 baking dish

- 1 15 ounce can corn niblets - drained
- 1 15 ounce can creamed corn - not drained
- 1 cup sour cream
- ½ cup melted butter
- 1 package of Jiffy Corn Muffin mix

In a bowl mix the two cans of corn, butter and sour cream blending well. Then fold in Jiffy Corn Muffin mix, mixing until well blended.

Pour batter in prepared pan and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 - 35 minutes. You can double this recipe, but it will take a bit longer to bake. Top should be lightly browned.

Leftover Thanksgiving Dinner Casserole Recipe

By MARIE

Every year around the holidays we often find ourselves with lots of leftovers and even though Thanksgiving dinner was delicious we try and try and come up with different ways to use them while keeping everyone interested.

Of course, we can always create the great turkey sandwich, which is never a disappointment, but in today's recipe we can use the leftovers in a casserole with turkey, stuffing, gravy and a vegetable or two.

This is a simple and easy recipe and guaranteed to make everyone ask for seconds!

Pre-heat oven to 325 degrees; lightly grease a 9 x 12 baking dish

- 3 to 4 cups of left-over turkey (or more if you are lucky)
- 2 or more cups of the left- over stuffing - use it all if you like
- 2 cups or so of any vegetable you want to add, such as broccoli or Brussel sprouts
- 2 or 3 cups of gravy

In a bowl, mix the turkey, stuffing, vegetables and gravy all together.

Put all ingredients in a 9 x 12 lightly greased baking dish and spread evenly in baking dish. If you don't have leftover gravy you can use 2 cups of chicken stock.

Bake covered for 25 to 30 minutes.

Turkey Turnovers

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for turkey turnovers that are made from leftover turkey, stuffing and any leftover vegetables. This is an easy recipe to make, serve and reheat if necessary.

Turkey Turnovers

Preheat oven to 350 degrees; prepare a cookie sheet with parchment paper or lightly grease

- 2 cups left-over turkey, diced and set aside
- 2 cups of stuffing
- 2 cups of any vegetable
- 1 cup left-over gravy
- 2 packages of pie crust - (I use Pillsbury pie crusts)

In a bowl, mix all of the ingredients together.

Place the pie crusts on a board and cut into 4-inch round pieces.

Place turkey mixture in the middle of the pie crust circle and fold over. Press edges with a fork to secure.

Cut slits on top and brush the top with egg wash before baking.

Place on a prepared cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees until golden brown.

Egg Wash

- 1 egg, well beaten
- A splash of milk or water
- Mix well,
- Brush on turnovers before baking.

Carb Free Cauliflower Stuffing

By SUSIE

Here is a version of stuffing that you can make along with your regular stuffing for guests who are trying not to eat carbs over the holiday - (or at least are trying to reduce them.)

Though this is pretty much an impossible task over the holidays, its always nice to try new things that you don't have to feel guilty over eating, and may even be a welcome addition to some pretty rich traditional fare. It's always a good idea to serve extra vegetables next to all those potatoes, stuffing, and gravy anyway.

This tastes more like a really tasty cauliflower dish than an actual "stuffing" but you will be surprised just how good it is.

Carb Carb Free Cauliflower Stuffing

- 4 tbsp. butter
- 1 onion, chopped
- 2 large carrots, peeled and chopped
- 2 celery stalks, chopped or thinly sliced
- 1 small head cauliflower, chopped
- 1 c. chopped mushrooms
- kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1/4 c. Freshly Chopped Parsley
- 2 tbsp. chopped fresh rosemary
- 1 tbsp. chopped fresh sage or 1 tsp. ground sage
- 1/2 c. vegetable or chicken broth

Directions

1. In a large skillet over medium heat, melt butter. Add onion, carrot, and celery and sauté until soft, 7 to 8 minutes.
2. Add cauliflower and mushrooms and season with salt and pepper. Cook until tender, 5 to 10 minutes more.
3. Add parsley, rosemary, and sage and stir until combined, then pour over vegetable broth and cover with a lid. Cover until totally tender and liquid is absorbed, 15 minutes.

Counterfeit Cosmetics: Think Twice About Bargain Beauty Products

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Stocking up on the newest beauty products can prove to be expensive. In an attempt to save money, you may be able to shop around and find things on sale at reputable retailers. However, beware of deals that seem too good to be true on the internet or from fly-by-night sellers, such as flea market vendors. Purchasing these products may buy you more trouble than you bargained for.

Illegitimate sales, product tampering and reselling are beauty industry issues that merit close attention and consumer awareness. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration urges caution on the part of consumers. Counterfeit products, including cosmetics, are illegal and may be harmful to a consumer's health. The danger, according to the FDA, is that counterfeits may contain dangerous or banned ingredients, unacceptable by-products of manufacturing or unapproved color additives. Luckily, most incidents of cosmetic counterfeiting or product tampering aren't extremely serious. But if you don't purchase products from reputable retailers, it's nearly impossible to know exactly what's in the products you're using.

Last year, officials in Los Angeles seized $700,000 worth of counterfeit cosmetics from a renowned outdoor shopping area. The makeup was contaminated with high levels of bacteria and feces. Counterfeit products aren't produced under the same safe and hygienic conditions that legitimate products are, so feces or other contaminants can get mixed into the product they're manufacturing in their garage or in their bathroom, or wherever they're producing it. Companies that make cosmetics and skin care products are actively fighting counterfeiting.

So how can consumers protect themselves when it's nearly impossible for the average consumer to tell the difference between a branded product and a well-done counterfeit? The FDA states it is best to purchase cosmetics and skin care products from reputable sources, and to be wary of products sold at flea markets or resold online in channels such as auctions. It recommended checking packaging carefully for any evidence that the product might have been repackaged or relabeled. Additionally, confirm that the product looks and smells like it should. Some of these fakes are amazingly realistic looking. Picking out a phony product might be hard for a novice. Pay close attention to the prices, packaging, and quality of the product. If the price is too good to be true, if the packaging is discolored or missing a barcode, or if the consistency or texture of the product seems unlike the original, you are most likely seeing counterfeit merchandise.

Unlike legitimate skin care brands, companies producing sham products have no oversight or regulation.

Counterfeit makeup often contains known carcinogens arsenic, beryllium, and cadmium as well as potentially infection-causing bacteria that can lead to scarring, burning, and disfigurement. If you're always looking to enhance your beauty product collection you may fall prey to a scam too easily. Follow these tips to avoid spending money on phony products:

- Be suspicious of great bargains. If the price looks too good to be true, it is usually a sign that you are buying counterfeit goods, especially if you see these products on a website.

- Fake cosmetics are not the only problem. Consumers should also watch to avoid purchasing old and expired cosmetics on these same websites. Always check the expiration dates.

Remember, the bargain that you may think you're getting could cost you so much more in the end, including medical costs and illnesses.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Carney Hospital Earns 'A' For Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade

Carney Hospital was awarded an 'A' in Fall 2019 Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade, a national distinction recognizing Carney Hospital's achievements protecting patients from harm and providing safer health care.

The Leapfrog Group is an independent national watchdog organization driven by employers and other purchasers of health care committed to improving health care quality and safety for consumers and purchasers. The Safety Grade assigns an 'A', 'B', 'C', 'D' or 'F' grade to all general hospitals across the country based on their performance in preventing medical errors, injuries, accidents, infections and other harms to patients in their care.

"Quality, patient safety and satisfaction are top priorities for our Carney Hospital team," said Tom Sands, FACHE, president of Carney Hospital. "Earning an 'A' rating from the Leapfrog Group is an outstanding accomplishment that validates and motivates us to continue to provide world class care to our patients. Our dedicated team of clinical staff, physicians, and support staff collectively strive to assure that excellent care is provided every day, every patient, every encounter."

"A" hospitals show us their leadership is protecting patients from preventable medical harm and error," said Leah Binder, president and CEO of The Leapfrog Group. "It takes genuine commitment at every level — from clinicians to administrators to the board of directors — and we congratulate the teams who have worked so hard to earn this A."

Developed under the guidance of a national Expert Panel, the Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade uses 28 measures of publicly available hospital safety data to assign grades to more than 2,600 U.S. acute-care hospitals twice per year. The Hospital Safety Grade's methodology is peer-reviewed and fully transparent, and the results are free to the public.

To see Carney Hospital's full grade details, learn how employers can help, and access patient tips for staying safe in the hospital, visit hospitalsafetygrade.org and follow The Leapfrog Group on Twitter and Facebook.

Nicole Flora Student Senator At Assumption College

The Assumption College Student Government Association (SGA) announces Nicole Flora of Quincy has been elected to and is serving as senator of the Class of 2021 and LEAD representative during the 2019-20 academic year.

The Student Government Association is the governing student body on campus, representing all undergraduate students. The purpose of SGA is to advocate for students and give voice to their opinions to enhance students' experience and encourage their participation in extra-curricular activities. Their work is guided by a constitution and by-laws.

"We have an enthusiastic group of officers this year that is completely dedicated to building upon the success of the past year to enhance the student experience at Assumption," said Colin McQuillan, SGA President for the 2019-20 academic year. "As a group, we are consistently working on addressing important issues facing students on campus as well as planning events of interest to students that will complement classroom instruction and maintain the vibrant campus life at Assumption."

SGA is comprised of students elected from each class who are responsible for fundraising, planning events and ultimately their class's Senior Week. Executive officer positions include: president, vice president for financial affairs, vice president for student affairs, vice president for academic affairs, and senate speaker.

QCS, ENC To Present 'Messiah' Nov. 24

Concert At Wollaston Church Of The Nazarene, 4 P.M.

Celebrating the 100th anniversary of Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy, Quincy Choral Society, members of the Eastern Nazarene College community, and the Worcester Polytechnic Institute Chamber Choir will perform George Frederic Handel's "Messiah," under the direction of Joshua W. Rohde, music director of Quincy Choral Society.

This will be the 82nd performance of Messiah on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College. The soloists for Messiah are Sarah Rohde, soprano, Emerald Barbour, alto, Jason Dyer, tenor, and Stephan Griffin, bass. The performance will include orchestra, organ, and harpsichord.

The concert will be held at Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, 37 E. Elm Ave., Quincy, on Sunday, Nov. 24 at 4 p.m. The church is handicapped accessible. General admission is $20 (admission is free with student ID) and tickets are available at brownpapertickets.com. For additional information contact 617-745-3715.

Sarah Rohde teaches music at Milford High School, Milford, where she conducts the school choirs. She also teaches elementary school music and gives private voice lessons. Ms. Rohde is married to Quincy Choral's music director Joshua Rohde.

A native of St. Louis, Emerald Barbour is pursuing a Master of Music in Voice Performance at the Boston Conservatory at Berklee.

Jason Dyer completed a Masters of Music in Voice Pedagogy from New England Conservatory in May. He recently moved to Quincy and teaches at South Shore Conservatory.

Singer, conductor, and organist Stephan Griffin is Director of Music at All Saints Parish in Brookline. Mr. Griffin has performed with Quincy Choral several times, most recently as pianist for Brahms' Ein deutsches Requiem as arranged by Brahms for piano in four hands.

Joshua W. Rohde was appointed music director of Quincy Choral Society in September 2016. Dr. Rohde is Director of Choral Activities at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, where he conducts all four of the university's choral ensembles - Men's Glee Club, Women's Alden Voices, Festival Chorus, and Chamber Choir. Dr. Rohde's work encompasses multiple music genres, including new music by living composers. His dissertation was on living Scottish composer Sir James MacMillan. Notable world premieres of new music include his work with several Pulitzer Prize winning composers. As a soloist, he has played cello concerti, performing works by Elgar, Haydn, Boccherini, and Shostakovich, and he regularly works as a continuo cellist playing the choral-orchestral works of Bach.

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. In December 2015, the Quincy City Council recognized Quincy Choral Society for bringing music and joy to the City of Quincy for 35 years. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, at Carnegie Hall as part of the Masterworks Series, and most recently in Montreal and Quebec. In September 2018, the Chorus participated in the dedication of the Hancock - Adams Common. Quincy Choral Society is a 501(c)(3) organization, and donations are tax deductible to the extent allowed by law.

Social Security Matters

Should I Claim Benefits At Age 67 If I'm Working?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My wife and I were talking to some other senior citizens who say it would be more beneficial to start drawing social security when I turn 67 next year, rather than wait till 70, even if I work full time. Can I do that? Signed: Working Senior

Dear Working Senior: Yes, you can do that, but it may not be your best strategy. Let's explore your options:

If your wife is already collecting Social Security on her work record, you might consider filing a "restricted application for spousal benefits only" and collect a spousal benefit from your wife, while continuing to delay your claim for your own benefit, thus allowing your benefit to continue to grow. You can do this because you were born before 1/2/1954, which is the cutoff date for filing in this manner. In this way you could collect 50% of the benefit your wife is entitled to at her full retirement age (FRA) until such time as you file for your own benefit. If you wait until age 70 to file for your own, your payment will be 24% more than it will be when you are 67. But you cannot use this option unless, or until, your wife is collecting her Social Security benefit from her own work record.

There is no simple answer to when you should claim. It depends upon your current financial needs, your current health and your anticipated longevity (considering your family history). If you anticipate a long healthy life and don't urgently need the money, then waiting until age 70 to claim your benefit will not only give you the highest possible monthly payment but also the most in lifetime benefits (assuming you live to at least the "average" age (84 for a man today). Waiting until 70 will also ensure that your wife gets the highest possible survivor benefit, should you predecease her (at her FRA, your surviving spouse gets 100% of the amount you were receiving at your death).

As for you working, since you've reached your full retirement age you no longer need to worry about Social Security's "earnings test" which takes back benefits from anyone whose earnings exceed a certain limit. But it would be wise to consider that Social Security benefits are subject to Federal Income Tax (and, depending upon where you live, possibly a State income tax), so adding your Social Security income to your earnings from work could be an important tax consideration for you.

Claiming your benefit at age 67 will give you a payment which is 8% more than you would have gotten at age 66. But if the factors discussed above suggest you should wait longer, then you'll earn an additional 8% for each additional year you wait to claim your benefit, up to age 70 when your maximum benefit is reached. What is the downside to waiting? Well, only that your wife, if she will be eligible for a spousal benefit from you, cannot collect that spousal benefit until you start collecting your own benefit. Your wife's spousal benefit would be half of your age 66 benefit if she claims at her full retirement age.

So, as you can see, there is no easy answer to whether you should claim Social Security at age 67, but with the above information you should be able to make an informed decision. And here's one final suggestion: don't take Social Security advice from "armchair experts" and don't be swayed by those who might say "collect now because Social Security is going bankrupt." It's not. It's true that Congress needs to fix some portions of the program soon, and it's also true they've been dragging their collective feet to do so. But, historically, Congress has always stepped up to the task when they had to, and I'm confident they will eventually do so again.

Defendant Pleads Not Guilty To Manslaughter In McCallum Case

Two Brothers Charged In Connection With Deadly Brawl Outside Nickerson Post Due Back In Court In January

By SCOTT JACKSON

The two brothers charged in connection with a brawl outside a Squantum barroom, including the man accused of fatally striking a 44-year-old father of three from Bridgewater, are due back in court in January following their recent arraignment.

Matthew and Stephen Potter pleaded not guilty to charges stemming from that fight during their Nov. 6 arraignment in Norfolk Superior Court. They are both due back in court for pre-trial conferences on Jan. 10.

Matthew Potter, age 36 of Weymouth, was indicted for the manslaughter of Christopher McCallum, two counts of indecent assault and battery on a second person and simple assault of a third person.

The maximum sentence for a manslaughter conviction is 20 years in state prison.

Stephen Potter, age 34 of Boston, was indicted on two counts of assault and one count of assault and battery causing serious bodily injury. His charges are not related to McCallum's death, prosecutors said, but to two other victims from the same incident.

Bail was set at $1,000 for Steven Potter and $20,000 for Matthew Potter.

McCallum, 44, of Bridgewater died Jan. 28 after being taken off life support. He was rushed to Boston Medical Center around 1 a.m. on Jan. 27 after he was found bleeding and unconscious outside the Nickerson American Legion Post on Moon Island Road after police responded to a report of a large disorder.

An autopsy determined McCallum's death was a homicide caused by blunt force trauma.

McCallum grew up on Deerfield Street in Squantum and was a 1992 graduate of North Quincy High School. He was captain of the Red Raiders football and hockey teams his senior year and was inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy High Football Hall of Fame in 2016.

McCallum is survived by his wife Kathy and their sons Ryan, Michael and Christopher.

"He ruined our lives forever," Ryan McCallum said of his father's alleged killer following the arraignment. "You can't change what he did, he ruined it."

"We shouldn't be standing here," Kathy McCallum said. "It's maddening that we're here right now, because this story should not be Chris'—it shouldn't be."

In court documents, prosecutors said the Potter brothers started a fight with a Nickerson Post member that night. That led to the Potters being kicked out and the bar closing. Matthew Potter was "aggressive and swinging punches" as patrons left, according to one witness, prosecutors said, and was later seen on the ground with Christopher and William McCallum.

"A witness observed Christopher McCallum turn head first, body following, and land flat on his back, consistent with being punched or assaulted," according to the court document. "Several witnesses described hearing an audible cracking sound when Christopher's head hit the pavement."

Kevin Reddington, Matthew Potter's attorney, gave a different account of that night, saying his client was the victim of a "group assault" that included Christopher and William McCallum. Reddington said his client came to him the following day with multiple injuries, which he documented.

Bill Doyle, Christopher McCallum's brother-in-law, dismissed Reddington's claim as "smoke and mirrors."

Matthew and Steven Potter are the sons of retired Quincy Police Det. Sgt. Richard Potter, who served with the department for 30 years. Their sister currently serves with the department.

Quincy police recused themselves from the investigation during its early stages, leaving the investigation to prosecutors and State Police.

Hughes Nominated For Clerk Magistrate

By SCOTT JACKSON

Gov. Charlie Baker has nominated Quincy City Councillor Kirsten Hughes to be the next clerk magistrate of the Stoughton District Court.

Baker announced the nomination on Nov. 6.

"Attorney Hughes' legal and community experience in both the public and private sectors will enable her to serve effectively in the Stoughton District Court," Baker said in a statement. "I am pleased to submit her name to the Governor's Council for their advice and consent."

"As an experienced attorney who has represented clients at the District Court level in a variety of jurisdictions, I am confident that this qualified nominee will serve the Stoughton District Court well," said Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito. "If confirmed, I am confident she will serve all parties before her fairly."

Hughes has represented Ward 5 on the City Council since 2012. She did run for re-election in the Nov. 5 municipal election.

Hughes is currently the general counsel for the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, where she advises and represents the office in all matters relating to employment, union and civil matters, according to the governor's office. Hughes was also appointed as special sheriff, in which capacity she manages and oversees a staff of approximately 50 employees and is responsible for the management and administration of the organization's budget.

Prior to her work in the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, Attorney Hughes practiced law in the office of Palmucci Law, P.C., Quincy, the governor's office said. In private practice, she represented indigent clients on behalf of the Committee for Public Counsel Services in District Court proceedings.

Hughes also served as the chairwoman of the Massachusetts Republican Party. She was first elected to that position in 2013 and re-elected in 2015 and 2015. Hughes did not seek re-election as the GOP chairwoman this year.

Hughes worked with the state party during the 2006 and 2010 election cycles; she served as the state GOP's field director in 2010. In 2008, Hughes was a field staffer for John McCain's presidential campaign before working for then Sen. Scott Brown's re-election campaign in 2012.

Developer To Alter South Quincy Condo Plan

propose something to get people to the table."

The Southside site, Harnais added, provides an opportunity for transit-oriented development given its proximity to the Quincy Adams MBTA station.

"Personally, the bar shouldn't be there anymore," he said. "It should change."

Mark Sullivan, the architect who designed the proposal, said the building would stand six stories tall. Seventy-one parking spaces would be located in the building's ground floor and a below-grade level. The lower garage level would be accessible from Quincy Street and the ground floor garage would be accessible from Liberty Street.

The residential units would be located on the upper levels - 10 units per story on floors two through five, and eight units on the sixth floor. The building would include four single-bedroom units, 40 two-bedroom units and four units with three bedrooms.

The project would require approval from the Planning Board and Zoning Board of Appeals. Sullivan said the initial proposal would require variances from the ZBA for floor-area ratio, height, setbacks, open space and parking. Harnais said the project would need 1.5 parking spaces per unit, a total of 72 spaces for a 48-unit building, under the city's code and his client was seeking to include fewer spaces because it is a transit-oriented development.

Several residents in attendance for the meeting said the project would be too big for the area and wouldn't provide enough parking. Anthony Sansevero said he was circulating a petition opposing the proposal because of those concerns.

"I can tell you that 100 percent of the people I did get to talk to, they don't want it," he said. "They would much rather have a bar there than make a six-story building."

Rosemarie Martin suggested the new development should be reduced so that it is similar in size to a six-unit building built recently on Penn Street.

"You take out about 42 [units], I think everyone in here would be happy," she said. "The bar is annoying, it's noisy in the summer, but I would rather have that noisy bar all summer long than this."

"We need to work with you, but you need to cut that building, take out about four floors and about 40 apartments and we will all be happy with you," Martin added.

In response to residents' concerns about traffic and parking in the area, Chris Cassani, the head of the city's traffic department, said his office has drafted a plan to make Liberty and Trafford Streets one-way roads between Brooks Avenue and Centre Street, with traffic flowing in opposite directions on Liberty and Trafford. Cassani said that would allow parking on both sides of Liberty and Trafford, with one 12-foot travel lane on each road.

Residents were lukewarm to the proposal Cassani unveiled; he said he would attend a community meeting in the future to further discuss traffic and parking woes in the area.

One resident, who did not give his name, said he was in favor of the proposal. He asked the building owner, Lou Bertucci, how much the bar pays in property taxes and how much the new building would pay.

Bertucci said it pays $10,400 in real estate taxes today while the new building would pay $240,000 annually.

Harnais fielded a number of questions from residents during the meeting. In response to one question, Harnais said it could take up to a year to permit and construct the new building. Another resident asked if a shuttle service could be provided between the new building and the train station, which Harnais said would be a possibility.

"When we start looking at places like this near a train station far enough that it's not walk across the street like Deco, you start looking at some sort of shuttle back and forth to make it easier," he said.

Harnais was also asked if the owner planned to offer any mitigation; Harnais said it would be provided in some form.

"Mitigation is usually part of it - it has to be," he said.

Palmucci said area residents would help determine what that mitigation is.

"That's part of what this is," the councillor said. "You guys come up with a wish list."

Feedback from residents, he added later, would be important during the permitting process before the Planning Board and Zoning Board of Appeals.

"They take your input seriously," Palmucci said. "It's not a done deal... You have a voice. You have a chance to shape it. You have a chance to defeat the project. You have a chance to support this project if you love it."

percent. Tracey Dorgan of 108 Sherman St. finished third with 14.21 percent of the vote.

In the race for the three at-large seats on the City Council, incumbents Noel DiBona, Nina Liang and Anne Mahoney all prevailed over challengers Frank Rubino and Joann Sullivan Cantor.

DiBona, of 70 Chickatabot Rd., led the way with 9,675 votes - the most of any candidate on the ballot. Mahoney, of 12 Ferriter St., was second with 8,688 votes and Liang, of 2 Williams St. was third with 8,375. The three at-large councillors finished in the same order this year as they did in 2017.

Rubino, of 5 Whiton Ave., was fourth with 2,880 votes and Sullivan Cantor, 316 Fenno St., polled 2,235 votes.

DiBona and Liang will each begin their third two-year term in January. Mahoney will begin her second term on the council. DiBona and Mahoney both previously served on the School Committee - DiBona for two years and Mahoney for 12.

In the race to represent Ward 1 on the council, incumbent David McCarthy defeated challenger Joseph Murphy in a rematch of their 2017 contest. McCarthy received 1,954 votes in this year's election to Murphy's 1,005. McCarthy prevailed in all five precincts in the district.

McCarthy will begin his second term on the council in January. He previously served 12 years on the School Committee.

McCarthy and Murphy were the top two vote getters in the September preliminary. McCarthy received 61.2 percent of the vote in the preliminary and Murphy finished with 21.16 percent. A third candidate, Danielle Kempe of 1 Adams St., was third with 17.09 percent.

In Ward 3, Ian Cain of 8 Highpoint Cir. was re-elected to a third term, besting first-time candidate Eriberto Soto of 627 Adams St. Cain received 1,514 votes to Soto's 486. Cain finished first in each of the district's five precincts and his share of the vote total, 75.29 percent, was the highest of any candidate in a contested ward race.

Charles Phelan Jr. of 298 Fenno St. was elected to the open Ward 5 seat on the council, topping first-time candidate Stephen Christo of 42 Standish Ave. Phelan, who formerly represented Ward 5 on the council from 1988 to 1996, received 1,372 votes and Christo finished with 1,086.

Phelan outpolled Christo in three of the ward's five precincts. Phelan won Precinct 3, 301 to 251; Precinct 4, 351 to 219; and Precinct 5, 372 to 200. Christo finished ahead of Phelan in Precinct 1, 171 to 115, and in Precinct 2, 245 to 228.

Phelan, who is not related to former mayor William Phelan, was the city's IT director before retiring last year.

The incumbent Ward 5 councillor, Kirsten Hughes, did not seek re-election this year. She was first voted into the seat in 2011.

The incumbent Ward 6 councillor, William Harris of 74 Ashworth Rd., was re-elected to a third term, polling 1,766 votes. First-time candidate William Isenberg of 36 Carle Rd. received 833 votes. Harris was the top vote getter in each of the ward's five precincts.

The remaining two ward councillors were running unopposed. Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall received 1,489 votes en route to a fifth term and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci garnered 1,450 votes to win a sixth term.

The two incumbent School Committee members running for re-election topped the four-person field in that race. Kathryn Hubley of 44 Marion St. was first with 8,508 votes and Paul Bregoli of 80 Willow Ave. was second with an even 8,000. They will each begin their third four-year term in January.

Also winning a seat in the school board race was Frank Santoro, of 14 Lois

GENEVIEVE GLENNON (3) of Squantum gives Mayor Tom Koch a thumbs up outside the Squantum School on Election Day, Nov. 5. The school serves as the polling precinct for Ward 6 Precinct 5. The Squantum precinct had the highest voter turnout with 46.64 percent (1,081 out of 2,381 registered voters) casting ballots. Koch won all 31 precincts in the city defeating challenger Brenda Ryan. In Squantum Koch polled 80.18 percent of the vote with 821 votes while Ryan had 184 votes (17.97 percent).

Ter., who received 6,438 votes. Santoro, who was principal at both Central Middle School and Quincy High School before retiring, previously served two terms on the committee in the 1980s and '90s.

Finishing fourth in the race was first-time candidate Courtney Perdios of 86 Ruggles St. who polled 5,990 votes.

The third incumbent committee member, James DeAmicis, did not seek re-election this year. He is finishing his first term on the committee.

Turnout in the Nov. 5 election was 24.57 percent, with 14,291 of the city's 58,174 eligible voters casting ballots.

Turnout was highest in Ward 6, Precinct 5, which encompasses Squantum; 1,081 of the precinct's 2,381 registered voters cast ballots in the election, good for a turnout of 46.64 percent.

Turnout was also high in Ward 1, Precinct 5, which includes most of Houghs Neck. Turnout there was 40.84 percent, with 961 of 2,353 registered voters voting.

In Ward 2, Precinct 3A, which includes part of the complex at 1000 Southern Artery, turnout was 49.44 percent, with 177 of the 358 registered voters casting ballots.

side helicopters, said Veterans Day was once at risk of becoming simply another day people get to stay home from work. In recent years, however, more and more Americans have come to understand the significance of the day.

"For a long time, Veterans Day seemed to be at risk of becoming just another day off of work, a reason to have a party, catch up on chores around the house, or, depending on the weather... the unofficial start of winter," Seggerty said.

"In recent years, a collective shift in thinking has transpired. A new awareness of the sacrifices our military members are making is emerging, becoming engrained in our American experience.

"Who knows exactly what caused the shift? Maybe it was the lessons from the Vietnam Conflict or perhaps the shared experience of seeing today's young men and women fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan. It could even be the many movies and TV shows that suddenly shed new light on the many sacrifices our service members make. Regardless of the reason, something has changed about the way Americans now think of their heroes. That shift transcends politics, cultural differences and religion."

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

I was recently at a buddy's house and he opened his garage door to show off his Chevy Malibu on his new lift. We both have a couple of old cars that we work on and now I am very jealous. I have a two-car garage under my house, but I don't have the ceiling height he does. Do you have any opinion on lower lift systems?

I'm jealous as well. I can see no down side to having a lift at your house. I only have limited experience with low/mid-rise lifts. If I was shopping for a lift, I would stay away from scissor style lifts, although okay for lifting the mechanism gets in the way if you need to do work under the middle of the car. After doing some reading online, the lift that seems to have the best reviews is BendPak QuickJack. It is a frame/body contact lift that leaves the middle of the car accessible. Unlike your friend's lift you are going to only get 20 or so inches of lifting. Even though there is a limited lifting height to me it is quite an advantage over what I have; which is floor jack, ramps and jack stands.

What do you think of undercoating or rust protection? I was car shopping and the dealer as part of the sales package had an undercoating and fabric protection package that they would "throw-in" if I was going to buy the car.

Not knowing what kind of product they were offering, this may be a case of you would get what you pay for. Interior protection packages to me are overrated and generally not necessary. If you wanted to protect interior fabric you could easily do it yourself with a spray on fabric protection product. Rust-proofing and undercoating requires quite a bit more work and to me is only necessary if you keep a vehicle a long time or it is subject to corrosive conditions. Some examples would be a truck that spends a lot of time plowing snow. Salt, calcium and magnesium ice melt products are very corrosive. Another application would be if you use a truck for towing a boat and the truck ends up partially submerged in salt water on a boat ramp. These are a couple of areas that I would consider a rust proofing. I recently saw a new to me (actually a 50-year old Swiss company) product called Waxoyl. It is a two-part system, there is an undercoating that remains flexible and the panel spray/fog that won't clog drain holes. What I like about this over some other systems is, there is no need to reapply the product periodically over time.

I have a question about winter driving. Front wheel drive is good in the winter and better with snow tires. What about snow tires on all four wheels versus four all season tires? I guess my real question is, are four snow tires worth the money?

Winter tires improve the traction of any vehicle in cold wintery conditions. In addition to a tread design that is better suited to dig through the snow, the rubber is made of a compound that stays stickier in cold weather and provides better traction even on dry roads. I was once road testing an Audi A6 quattro and it had "summer-tires" on it. The temperature was cold and there was about one-inch of snow on the road. I drove less than a mile slipping and sliding, turned around and used my own car with winter tires. If you need to be out before the snowplows buying winter tires is a good investment.

I'm actively searching for a new 2019 small, safe, reliable car that fits my needs and my budget. I drive locally and only put on about 6,000 miles per year. I rarely have anyone in the back seat of my car, except for my dog. I have test driven the Honda HR-V EX and the Mazda CX3 Sport model. Both seemed easy to manage and I like both vehicles, which would you buy?

The Honda HR-V to me seems a bit my practical and slightly more versatile. Honda did a great job of fitting a lot of features into a small package. The Mazda CX-3 is a bit sportier feeling, handles a bit sharper and is just a little quieter. Honda vehicles typically hold their value a bit better, but both are good vehicles. You won't go wrong with either vehicle. Some other things to consider are, dealership proximity, financing and trade in value of your current car.

My Infiniti G37x sedan developed a "vinegar" smell when using the air conditioner or the heater. The car was in for service and the dealer replaced the cabin air filter and sprayed something into the heater. It was fine for a few days, but now the smell is back. What could this be, is it the heater or air conditioner leaking? What should the dealer repair shop do now to eliminate the vinegar smell?

The smell could be a result of mold/mildew build up in the climate control system. The first thing you can try is always use the climate control on the fresh air setting. The recirculate setting tends to build up moisture which turns into mold. At this point I would go back to the dealer that performed the repair and see if they can do some additional cleaning and spray some additional cleaner into the system. In the very worst case, the system needs to be disassembled and cleaned.

Could a patched tire be losing air and trigger the low tire pressure light? Or is this more of an issue that the temperature has gotten cooler? If I have to replace this tire, can I just replace this one tire, or do I need to replace two or more tires? My car is 2015 Volvo XC60.

If the tire is repaired properly with a combination plug/patch the repaired tire shouldn't cause any issues. The first place to start is to see if this is a case of the sensor malfunctioning or is one of the tires actually losing air. If it were my car, I would properly inflate the tires and measure the inflation with a tire gauge. If the light comes on, recheck the tire pressure. If the tires are more than 25 percent worn you will need to replace at least two tires and for best results replace all four tires.

When I turn on my car - it is a 2017 Ford Fiesta - there is a knocking noise from the heater vent for about 15 seconds. When I turn the control to heat, it stops. What is wrong?

Your car like many use electric motors that control air flow in the ducts. It is possible that one of the air duct motors is faulty and the noise you hear is the duct trying to open or close. At this point I would bring the car to a shop where they can perform some tests to determine if the doctor motor and controller is faulty. It is even possible that the ducts could have some debris interfering with the operation of the climate control.

How do I lower the headlights on a 2014 Toyota Tacoma? I get flashed often because the lights are high on a low-beam setting. I asked at the dealership and they will charge me $79 to lower the lights. I know there is a screw that needs to be turned to set the lights, but I can't find the screw in this exact model. Help, I'm just trying to be safe and save some money.

The first thing to do is check the overall headlight alignment. There is a specific procedure to do this, using light board and parking 25 feet away. The alignment should be checked on both low and high beam settings. Although there is only two adjustments, vertical and horizontal, it is easy to get the headlights further out of adjustment, making the lights offensive and ineffective. Perhaps to save a little money if there is a vocational school near you. They would be willing to make the necessary adjustments as part of a lighting lesson.

I recently moved here from Orlando for a great job. In Florida, we really didn't do much to our cars as the seasons changed. Now that I'm here, how to get my car ready for winter?

The three most important items to get through winter are a strong battery, good tires-perhaps even dedicated winter tires and keeping up with vital fluids. A battery becomes damaged during summer heat but works hardest during winter cold. Tires provide traction to both get you moving and stopping. Dedicated winter tires will provide the best traction in winter weather conditions. Fluids such as oil, engine coolant and well as power steering, transmission and even windshield washer fluid all need to be in good shape and be adapted to winter cold. You should also keep an ice scraper, long handled snow brush, extra warm clothes, small shovel and even some non-clumping kitty litter for extra traction if you get stuck on ice.

Where can I get the seal around my windshield replaced? It is coming apart in pieces. In addition to being ugly I'm afraid the windshield will start to leak.

Depending on the vehicle design, the windshield may need to come out to replace the seal. It may also be just the windshield molding, which will take a lot less time. The molding, in many cases doesn't require removal of the windshield. My suggestion would be to go to a glass shop, they deal with this type of thing all the time.

My car is 11 years old and now the horn begins blowing at odd times as if I have hit the panic button on the key fob. Is there some type of battery inside the car that could be losing charge to cause this or is it simply because my key fobs are so old their batteries are dying?

The key-fob batteries even if they are failing wouldn't set off the panic alarm. There could be an issue with the courtesy light switches turning on the dome light. The other issue could be that the airbag cover is shrinking and actuating the horn. At this point the only way you are going to find the issue is to be there while the horn is blaring. In the interim you might want to learn how to disconnect the horn, so you don't disturb your neighbors.

I was driving recently and I got a message on the dash that warned "oil pressure is low." I don't drive the car much and the last time I started it, there was no light. Is it a fluke or is something wrong?

The engine oil pump delivers oil to critical parts of the engine. Low oil pressure could be the result of a faulty oil pump, worn engine bearings and even a faulty oil pressure switch. At a minimum, check the engine oil, if it is very low the oil pressure will be low. If the oil level is full, then have a technician check the oil pressure with a mechanical gauge. If the oil pressure is okay, then the oil pressure sender is faulty. If the oil pressure reads low, then some additional exploration will be required.

JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

I can't start my Honda CR-V. I had a message that there is an electric brake system problem. The CR-V only gets driven on weekends, what does the electric brake message and the car not starting have to do with each other. I will be calling AAA to have the car towed to the Honda dealer.

The power brake booster on your Honda uses an electric pump, rather than engine vacuum. I have found that this warning comes up when the engine battery has become discharged. At this point check all of the electrical connections as well as battery condition. I have also seen that some Honda CR-V models will end up with battery discharged when the vehicle sits idle for more than a week due to parasitic drain.

I have a 2000 Ford Taurus in good condition however; it needs a heater core. I heard this is a huge job. How much would it cost?

It is a big job, taking about seven hours of labor. At an average labor rate of $90-$120 per hour, the labor alone would be $630 to $840 then add in the heater core and other materials. The Ford factory heater core is $170, you could use an aftermarket heater core which run about half the factory part price.

What is your opinion on buying a former lease, rental, fleet car? I'm looking at a 2016 Toyota RAV4 with 18,000 miles on it. I'm buying it from a large used car dealer that seems to specialize in former rental cars.

I have purchased three cars that were from rental fleets and had good luck with all three. Just like any used car you should have it checked out by an independent repair shop. Some items to look at are overall body condition, was it involved in a crash? At nearly four years old I would also be looking for tire, brake and battery issues as well as making sure all of the general maintenance is up to date.

I have a 2014 Ford Escape with 12,500 miles. Time, not mileage, is my greatest concern. I am wondering what, if anything, to do about fluids such as transmission fluid, brake fluid, radiator antifreeze, etc. Should I just leave them be or do I plan for flush/replacement and, if so, at what intervals - mileage or time?

Your Ford like many vehicles today uses indicator-based maintenance. In this case essentially the vehicle should know when and what needs to be performed. I'm a bit old-fashioned and still like to look at time, mileage and common sense. With people who drive little like you do, I will look at mileage-based suggestions and calculate the mileage/time equivalent. As an example, the average vehicle is driven about 12,000 per year. Since your car is five years old, I would look at maintenance items that would come up in the 60,000-mile recommendation. In the case of your vehicle; transmission, brake and coolant fluids require no service until much later. I would still be looking at air and cabin filters that can get dirty as well as tires that can become damaged from age and potholes.

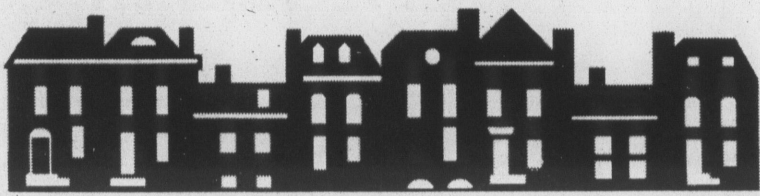

I leased a 2016 Toyota Scion iA in 2016 and when lease was up three years later, I bought it. Two months after owning the car the radio stopped working. I'm looking to see what I can do to get radio fixed without going to dealership and spending money I do not have, I'm so angry this happened to me.

The radio in your Scion is a fairly sophisticated system and like all newer cars has its own diagnostic routine to find out why it stopped working. As an alternative to the dealer you could try an auto-stereo store. These electronic stores may be able to diagnose the problem, repair it or make a recommendation for an after-market replacement radio. The replacement radio may even have more up to date features that weren't available in 2016.

Registry Of Deeds Holiday Food Drive Nov. 18 - Dec. 27

Noting that some Norfolk County families are more worried about putting food on the table this holiday season than presents under the tree, Register of Deeds William O'Donnell is asking people to contribute to the Registry's Annual Holiday Food Drive, starting Monday, Nov. 18th and running through Friday, Dec. 27th.

"There is no doubt that Norfolk County is a destination place to live and to work. However, there are people throughout the county that are truly hurting," O'Donnell said. "Just looking at our monthly foreclosure numbers, we at the Registry of Deeds can see firsthand how people are being adversely impacted. Misfortune can strike anytime to anyone in a number of ways, from a job loss to a medical catastrophe to an elderly person on a fixed income."

Today, according to the latest Project Bread statistics, approximately 720,000 people in Massachusetts, 1 out of every 10 residents, are considered food insecure. It has been estimated by anti-hunger groups that more than 46,000 residents in Norfolk County are food insecure, including approximately 16,000 children.

"As we near the holiday season, there is definitely a need for more food assistance. Household expenses are higher due to the cost of home heating fuel and also food bills are higher with the kids home during school vacation," O'Donnell said.

Non-perishable food items can be brought directly to the Registry of Deeds which is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. A donation bin will be set-up in the Registry's lobby and food can be dropped off Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Suggested donations include canned goods, breakfast cereals, pasta, sauces, toiletries and paper products.

If you can't get to the Registry to drop off food, you can check the website at www.norfolkdeeds.org for a pantry location in your community.

"Working together, we can truly make a huge difference this holiday season," O'Donnell said.

On Sunday, Nov. 3, at approximately 1 p.m., Officer Steve Cleary was on patrol in the area of Walmart at Falls Boulevard when he observed a vehicle fail to stop for a stop sign.

The officer observed the operator look in his side mirror towards the officer's direction. He immediately put his left turn signal on and turned onto Falls Boulevard. The operator then put his right turn signal on pulled into 200 Falls Boulevard, driving approximately 100 feet before suddenly pulling into a parking spot.

Officer Cleary pulled behind the vehicle and approached the operator. The operator suddenly opened his door and threw the keys on the ground. This unusual behavior perked the officer's concerns. When asked for license and registration, the operator stated he did not have a driver's license because it was suspended.

The officer asked the operator why he pulled into the parking space and the operator said that he was visiting a friend. When asked what his friend's name was, the operator said, "Tweet," which was followed by the question of where "Tweet" lives. The operator looked around and stated, "I don't know."

Officer Cleary directed the operator to exit the vehicle and then handcuffed him. The operator then blurted out, "I don't consent to a search." He then asked if he could video the officer. Officer Cleary reminded the operator that he was in handcuffs and it would be difficult to do that. The operator then reiterated, "I don't consent to a search."

The operator was placed in the officer's cruiser and a second unit was requested. The operator was asked again if he knew where his friend lived and also who owned the vehicle he was driving. The operator said he didn't know. A check of the license plate showed that it was rented from Hertz's rentals.

Officer Potter arrived on scene to monitor the prisoner while Officer Cleary began an inventory of the vehicle. Inside the rear hatch area the officer found a bag filled with approximately two pounds of marijuana. In another bag were two fabric softeners over approximately five pounds of marijuana (used ineffectively to throw off a drug K9's detection ability).

The officer continued the inventory to the front passenger area armrest and observed three smaller plastic bags filled with marijuana. Officer Cleary calculated the operator was in possession of approximately seven pounds of marijuana, which is well over the 10 ounces one could possess if he was a medical cardholder, which he was not. The estimated street value is $28,000.

The operator had $160 in U.S. currency in his possession. The marijuana was not in plain sight and concealed in a bag and box, which led the officer to believe that the operator possessed the marijuana with the intent to distribute.

The operator, a 36-year-old Charlton, R.I. resident, was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign, operating a motor vehicle after license suspended and possession of Class D drug with intent to distribute. Nice Work!

FREE MILITARY ELECTRONIC CREDIT MONITORING SERVICES:

Many members of the military will have access to free credit monitoring to help spot identity theft. The three main nationwide credit reporting agencies - Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion - have confirmed that they will provide this service to active duty service members and National Guard members.

This protection can alert users to problems on your credit report that might be the result of identity theft. For example, it would tell you if there's a new credit card or loan application in your name. If you were aware of the transaction, then there is no issue, however, if you were not, this monitoring could be an early alert of attempted identity theft.

Once you have the credit monitoring service, you will be notified by mobile app, email, or text of changes to your credit file. These can include changes of address, payments that are more than 30 days late, bankruptcy information, foreclosures, liens, and new accounts opened in your name. For more information contact one of the named companies above directly.

QUINCY POLICE SELF DEFENSE PROGRAM FOR WOMEN

This free program will be offered Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 25 and 26, a two-night course, from 6 to approximately 8:15 p.m. at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., in the basement.

This program is open only to females aged 18 and up, 16 if with a female parent/guardian and there is no residency requirement.

Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program. There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with.

The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker." Bring a friend! It's more fun!

New School Hometown Highlight For Quincy's Brian Laroche

Project Manager For South-West Middle School

The completion of the newly-dedicated South-West Middle School was done under the watchful eyes of Quincy resident Brian Laroche, who helped shepherd the $58-million school to an "on time and on budget" finish for the Boston-based project management firm PCA360.

Laroche, a lifelong Quincy resident and graduate of Quincy High School, says the project was as satisfying from a professional standpoint as it was from the great personal pride he takes in helping his hometown open a new school that will stand for decades and serve educators, students, and their families.

"Working on constructing schools is tremendously rewarding, since you know that you are having a significant impact on the lives of so many children," said Laroche. "Many of the best memories that people have of their childhood occurred while in school. To couple the reward of working on a school with living in the community only makes it that much more rewarding since I know many of the faculty and staff that work at the school and parents of students that go to the school. Often when I am out in the city, people asked me how the project was going; or now that its complete, they have seen it and are blown away by how amazing the new school is."

Formally trained as an architect, Laroche was the Project Manager from Boston-based PCA360, which managed the construction of the new, state-of-the-art school from design to completion as it was constructed adjacent to the Sterling Middle School it replaced.

"My job was to oversee the project team, which includes the Design, and Engineering consultants and the Construction Management firm," said Laroche. "My job was to ensure that everyone is doing what they need to do to keep the project moving on schedule and on budget."

Laroche, who grew up in Houghton Neck, attended the Atherton Hough Elementary School, Broad Meadows Middle School, and Quincy High School. He graduated from Wentworth Institute of Technology and has been a registered architect in Massachusetts since 2004, when he embarked on his career in project management.

As a project manager,

Laroche must connect all of the project team members from trades including construction, architecture, electrical, mechanical and plumbing engineering, accounting, scheduling, and building codes, he said.

"I spend a lot of my time reviewing the work of the team members, challenging them, encouraging and helping them all to be successful," he said. "The most important part of my job is to deliver the highest quality building at the lowest possible cost on schedule for the city."

Working on so many different areas is what Laroche enjoys most about his work with PCA360.

"I really like the varied tasks of my job, there is never a day that is boring, every day is different and varied," Laroche said. "The best part of my job is being a problem solver: we are constantly anticipating challenges and working with our team members to mitigate and eliminate problems before they become issues that could affect the project budget or schedule."

Laroche brings a unique set of technical and managerial skills to his work, said PCA360 Co-Founder and Project Director Tom Kerwin.

City Salutes Service On Veterans Day

WREATH was placed during Monday's parade at the Doughboy Statue on the corner of Hancock Street and Furnace Brook Parkway. The statue honors the Quincy residents who served in World War I. Monday marked the 100th anniversary of Armistice Day, the holiday established in 1919 to commemorate the end of World War I one year prior. The holiday was renamed Veterans Day in 1954.

REV. JOHN SWANSON delivered the invocation at Monday's Veterans Day ceremony. Standing with him at the podium is Leo Reardon, a past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council. "Keep us ever mindful that the cliché 'freedom isn't free' is true," Swanson said.

LT. COMM. RYAN SEGGERTY (left), commanding officer of Navy Operational Support Center Quincy, was the keynote speaker at Quincy's Veterans Day ceremony Monday at the World War II monument, Merrymount Park. "We often hear that freedom has a price and that each generation pays its due," Seggerty said in his remarks. "Today is our day to say thank you for those who for generations have footed the bill. Those who have missed birthdays, anniversaries, graduations – and to their families whose lives have been disrupted and to whom we owe an enormous debt." graduations – and to their families and friends whose lives have been disrupted and to whom we owe an enormous debt," he said.

Seggerty said it is important to pass the tradition of Veterans Day on to future generations, and outlined how those in attendance could do just that.

"Gathering together on this day is one way to show our appreciation and gratitude, but how do we extend the reverence we feel today through the other days of the year? And, more importantly, how do we instill and deepen the tradition of this special day for coming generations of Americans? How do we ensure that Veterans Day continues to be observed with profound reverence, regardless of whether or not we are a nation at war?" he said. "Let me make a few suggestions.

"First, we must teach each other about sacrifices that have been made on our behalf so we might continue to enjoy the liberties and freedoms granted in our constitution. We must help future generations understand that, politics aside, the act of committing yourself to your country and being willing to fight for the freedom of others is among the most noble of endeavors.

"Second, each of us must find a way to ensure the legacy of our heroes endures in what has become a soundbite culture. These dedicated men and women are worth more than that – more than a 20-second soundbite. Contributions to history deserves telling and retelling. Find a way in your life – at work, at home, at church or a youth group meeting – to keep their story alive. Honor their sacrifices, tell their stories, cherish their memories.

"Finally, continue to gather on this special day each year to pay homage to each and every veteran. Make this day an annual reminder of the need to give yourself in honor of those who stand tall in the face of battle. Treat Veterans Day with reverence and respect – others will follow your lead."

George Nicholson, the director of Quincy's Veterans Services Department, said the men and women of the city have served in greater numbers than many of the other communities in the area. More than 8,500 Quincy residents served during World War II, 1,500 served during the Korean War, nearly 2,000 served during the Vietnam War, and more than 1,400 have served in the military since the start of the Gulf War.

"That is over 13,400 citi-

NEW ENGLAND PATRIOTS' cornerback Joejuan Williams recently visited with the North Quincy High School football team. The second-round draft pick out of Vanderbilt University answered questions, signed autographs and posed for photos with the group.

NE Patriots' Joejuan Williams Visits Red Raider Football Team

The NQHS football team recently welcomed a visit from New England Patriots cornerback, #33 Joejuan Williams.

"It was a great day for North Quincy Football," said Red Raider head football coach Ryan Craig. "New England Patriots' second-round draft choice Joejuan Williams spoke to the team about his life journey leading up to the NFL. His story is truly inspiring, from humble beginnings to high school, to Vanderbilt University, to being drafted by the New England Patriots.

"Joejuan answered questions, signed autographs, and posed for photos with the group. He was a class act and delivered a powerful message of inspiration and positivity to our team. No doubt that Joejuan has added about 300 people in attendance to his growing base. We wish him luck in his career, the future is bright for that young man," Craig added.

Presidents' Football Downs Brookline, 46-23

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High football team had their best offensive performance of the season.

The Presidents faced Brookline on the road Nov. 9 and had no issue running the ball. The Presidents won the non-playoff game 46-23 to improve to 2-7 on the season.

In the win, the Presidents ran for over 350 yards as a team.

"That was our plan," Presidents head coach Kevin Carey said of their ground-heavy offense. "We did a very good job with it. What a heck of a job by our offense today. They're a solid football team. Their quarterback is a good player. But I'm very proud of the way these kids played today. Defensively, we made some mistakes today but offensively, we had a few guys hurt and some younger guys stepped in."

Brookline started the game off strong with a 40-yard sweep followed by a 19-yard touchdown pass on the third play of their drive. They hit their extra point to go up 7-0 with 11:08 left in the first quarter.

From there, however, the Presidents dominated, going on a 33-0 scoring run as Brookline's defense had no answer to stop the fierce running game.

Nate Steinberg (20 carries, 208 yards) scored on an eight-yard touchdown run with 8:56 remaining in the first quarter; he had four carries for 59 yards on the drive. Quincy also hit the two-point conversion. Amari Robinson (3-for-7 passing, -1 yard) connected with Trenton Souza on a three-yard rollout pass on the team's fake field goal pass play. This put the team up 8-7.

Brookline then had a three-and-out, in part caused by a failed screen pass for a three-yard loss. Shane Murphy stayed on his defender and quickly made the tackle.

Although the Presidents gained plenty of yards in the first half, they would not score again until their final drive of it.

With about three minutes left in the first half, Brookline fumbled on fourth and inches on the Presidents 45-yard line, resulting in a turnover on downs. The Presidents continued running the ball well—and this included a key 15-yard pickup from sophomore Jarrod Walker (11 carries, 107 yards) which put the team in the red zone. Steinberg, who had a 19-yard rush on the drive, capped it off with a six-yard counter, giving the Presidents a 14-7 lead with 16 seconds remaining in the half.

The Presidents got the ball back to start the second half, but it was their defense that put them in scoring position next. The Presidents got stopped at the Brookline 21-yard line on fourth and one. However, on the ensuing drive, Steinberg picked off Brookline's quarterback and ran it 38 yards to the one-yard line. On offense, he picked up that yard on a toss. This extended the team's lead to 20-7 with 8:15 remaining in the third quarter.

Brookline once again turned the ball over on downs at the Presidents 45-yard line on the drive following the score, and the Presidents capitalized on the decent field position. Steinberg had a 30-yard rush to put the Presidents in the red zone, and he finished the drive with a two-yard touchdown rush.

After a Brookline three-and-out, Trenton Souza (8 carries, 31 yards) had a 10-yard touchdown run on a dive up the middle; Walker made it possible with his 31-yard rush to put the team in the red zone. Billy Hibbard made the extra point kick, giving the Presidents a 33-7 lead with 3:06 remaining in the third quarter.

Brookline responded with a touchdown of their own on the next drive. They used deep passes to get themselves down the field, and their quarterback scored on an 11-yard rush. Brookline's two-point conversion pass worked, making it 33-15 with 1:19 left in the third quarter.

Brookline also quickly answered following a two-yard touchdown run by Walker with 8:50 left in the game. On the second play of their offensive drive, Brookline had a 67-yard touchdown pass. Their halfback pass on the two-point conversion worked, making it a 39-23 contest.

With 2:28 left in the game, Robinson (6 carries, 32 yards) scored on a five-yard touchdown run. Hibbard made the extra point, giving the team a 46-23 edge.

Brookline's next drive only lasted three plays. Oscar Li and Drew Boretti combined for a sack for a nine yard loss on the first offensive play of it. Then, on play three, Renee Marquez recovered a fumble for the Presidents. With the ball back and a commanding lead, the Presidents took knees to run out the clock.

Carey said his team's play on the offensive line impressed him. He noted that sophomore Riley O'Connell filled in at guard for an injured Tommy Le, one of the team's senior captains. Plus, sophomore Oscar Li performed well for them.

Carey also pointed to the leadership from seniors Erik Mayo and Kevin Ferent and their decision-making as vital to the team's success.

"Their performance was top notch," he said. "They just make the right calls at the right time in terms of audibles on the line. That says a lot. They've shown a lot of improvement and have done a heck of a job."

Although the Presidents did not make the playoffs this year, they have played hard this month. They dropped a tight 15-14 bout against Braintree the week before they beat Brookline, showing they are playing to win.

"It's hard to tell kids they're not going on to the playoffs," Carey said. "But this is almost like their playoff games. We've been matched up with Div. 1 teams we're not familiar with like Brookline and Weymouth. We haven't played Weymouth in awhile, but we're lined up pretty evenly. If we come and play like we did today, it should be good."

The Presidents next game is against Weymouth this Friday, Nov. 15 on the road at 7 p.m. It is the final game before the team's match-up on Thanksgiving versus rival North Quincy.

The Red Raiders bowed to North Attleboro, 35-20, last Saturday. North Quincy will host Hopkinton Friday at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium in their final non-playoff game before they play Quincy on Thanksgiving morning.

Quincy Girls' Volleyball Falls To KP In Semi-Finals

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High girls' volleyball team fought hard and took their season as far as they could.

The Quincy Presidents hosted the King Philip Warriors in the MIAA Division 1 South Sectional Semi-finals Nov. 6. Both teams battled during the contest but ultimately, the Presidents dropped the contest 3-2. With the loss, the Presidents' season ended; they went 20-3 on the year.

"That was a heartbreaker at the end, but I thought we fought really hard in those fourth and fifth sets," Presidents' head coach Jacqui Niosi said. "They're a good team and fought to the end. That's what happens."

"Both their middles are legit," she added. "They played great defense and had good serving. I thought from when we played Canton to when we played them, we definitely showed improvement so that's a positive. It was a battle but unfortunately, it didn't go our way."

The President started off their first set strong, going up 4-2 on an ace from Emma Glavin. KP countered with a 4-2 run of their own, tying the game up 6-6. From there, the score got tied at seven, eight, nine, 10 and 11 apiece before KP went on a 5-1 run to take a 16-12 lead. This forced the Presidents to call a timeout. Ultimately, this reversed momentum and the Presidents went on a 7-3 run, tying the game at 19 apiece on a KP hitting error. Although KP got the next two points and the Presidents called another timeout, the Presidents took back momentum for the rest of the set.

They went on a 6-0 run to close things out; five of those points came with Mona Ly serving. During that span, she had a pair of aces. The Presidents won the set 25-21; the game point came on a KP hitting error.

In the second set, KP set the tone going on a 4-1 run to start it off. The Presidents tied it at 5-5 on a 4-1 run of their own as Rachel McKenna popped the ball up over the heads of KP's front line. From there, however, KP went on a 13-5 run. The Presidents called a timeout when trailing 15-10 but KP extended their lead to 18-10 on a carry by the Presidents.

KP took the second set 25-14 on a block which they followed up with a kill.

This momentum transferred over into the third set for KP; they opened the set on an 11-3 run, giving themselves plenty of insurance. The Presidents would not recover in the set. KP went up double digits on a kill 16-6 as their offense continued to shine. The rest of the set was competitive in terms of scoring, but the Presidents were unable to come back; they fell in the set 25-14.

The Presidents recovered in the fourth set, going on an early 6-0 run to take an 8-3 lead; five of those points came with Julia Kapcia serving. Then, KP went on an 8-3 run of their own, tying the set at 11 apiece. With the set tied 14-14, Allison McMorrow had back-to-back kills to give the team a 16-14 edge. It started a 5-2 run for the Presidents, putting them up 19-16. The team finished the set strong; McKenna and Juliana Tracey capped off the set with kills on the final two points, winning them the set 25-17.

"It's mental toughness," Niosi said of her team coming back and winning the fourth set. "I think unfortunately we play a little better when our backs are against the wall, but it's tough to do. It's not like King Philip let down. We talked about basics and getting to where we needed to be."

The Presidents took an early 4-1 edge in the fifth and final set of the contest thanks to an ace from Kapcia and a serving error by KP. However, KP tied the game at eight apiece and took an 11-8 lead on a 4-0 scoring run.

Late in the set, the Presidents regained the lead on a pair of kills from McMorrow—including one which hit the top of the net and dropped in front of KP's defense, giving the team a 13-12 lead. However, KP came back and scored three straight points to win the set 15-13. KP scored the match point on kill just inside the left side of the court's edge.

Tracey led the team with 10 kills in the match while McMorrow (9 kills) and McKenna (8 kills) also hit well. Kapcia and Ly each had three aces apiece and on defense, Alyssa Ruan's 19 digs were a team-high, as were Glavin's 30 assists.

Now that their season is over, the Presidents will lose five seniors to graduation: right side hitter Caroline Jaehnig, middle hitter Allison McMorrow, outside hitter Brenna Tobin and captains Juliana Tracey and Julia Kapcia, both of whom are outside hitters.

"They're great kids," Niosi said of her senior class. "They've developed so much as volleyball players and leaders. As people, they've been awesome to have around in general. We're definitely going to miss them."

Looking at next season, Niosi said she is optimistic about the talent the team will return.

"We have a nice group of underclassmen," Niosi said. "They got some good experience this year and that will carry over into next year. They'll step up for us next year and be the new leaders."

KP advanced to the sectional finals but bowed to Boston Latin, 3-2, Saturday.

Granite Wrap Up Soccer Season

After a challenging 1-10 season during the 2019-2020 Quincy College Granite men's soccer season, Head Coach Idris Senyonjo says he is encouraged by his group of freshmen players.

Quincy College Granite's play improved every game this season as the Granite completed its third year of NJCAA Region 21 competition. Quincy College Granite experienced what sports fans like to consider a "rebuilding year" after many of the 2018-2019 playoff competing Quincy College Granite team graduated in May of 2019.

Quincy College Granite leadership on field came from sophomore players, led by team captain Gareth McAlinden, Derek Andrade, Annas Nour, and first year players Jake Champagne, Ryan McWade, Enes Serdar, Jorge Alfonso, and Kelvin Olanipekun. The Granite offense was led by sophomores Alex Lopes, Rafael Pina-Garcia, and first year players Carlos Culty, Peter Okeke, Rafael Macedo and Aaron Herrera.

Head Coach Senyonjo said he expects big things from team leading scorer Caio DeCastilho who had five goals on the season. Despite facing tough competition, solid in the goal all season was freshman Andre Mardley.

Under the leadership of Coach Senyonjo and Assistant Coach Roy Bander, Quincy College Granite built a strong foundation for future play. What's next for Quincy College Granite men's soccer? The coaching staff will be hitting the recruiting trail to insure that the Granite return to the NJCAA Region 21 playoffs next season.

NQ Apaches Advance To Bay State Super Bowl

In their second season in the Bay State Conference, the North Quincy Apaches stunned #1 seeded Natick to earn a spot in the 2019 Bay State Super Bowl with an impressive 14-6 victory over the Redhawks. The Apaches will also get the benefit of home field advantage, as Quincy's Veterans' Memorial Stadium was named by the Bay State Conference as the host site for the 2019 Super Bowls.

Entering the game, Natick was undefeated and had beaten the Apaches during the regular season in Week 5. The first half was a tough, hard fought defensive struggle as both defenses played well. But, it was the Apaches that got on the board first, when with less than a minute to go until halftime, quarterback Charlie Baker rushed for a 60-yard run. Baker was caught by a Redhawk defender at the 5 yard line, and with seconds left in the half, Ben Hudach scored for North as time expired.

The second half was more of the same and again was dominated by tough defensive play. Baker tossed to Enhea Panariti for a touchdown pass in the fourth quarter, and Noel Sancho kicked the extra points to extend the Apaches' lead, 14-0. With five minutes to go, Natick answered with a touchdown, but the extra points attempt failed. Natick ran an on-side kick but North was able to recover the ball near mid field, where North's offense converted 2 big first downs to run down the clock and hang on for a tough win over a strong opponent. It was a great all-around team effort as North kept the high-powered Natick offense on its heels all day.

Coaches praised efforts of entire team, noting standout performances from Will Conley, Noah Baker, Brody Baker, Jialin Yu, Dan Hudach and Conner Walsh.

On Sunday, the Apaches will take on another tough opponent as they face the Walpole Jr Rebels at 4 p.m. to determine Bay State Grade 8 Champions.

Quincy United Grade 5 - The Quincy United Grade 5 team also had a strong season and earned a spot in the Semi-finals, where they went up against Needham for a rematch of their Oct. 30th game. But, the United 5th graders fell short of a spot in the Super Bowl as Needham edged United 6-0 in a hard fought game at Marciano Stadium in Brockton.

The first half was a back and forth battle as both teams had scoring opportunities, but failed to capitalize as defensive units made great plays to shut down drives in the red zone. Needham and Quincy were both scoreless at halftime. In the third, Quincy's offense got in gear and gained momentum as they controlled the line of scrimmage and the ball managing to reach Needham's red zone on 2 trips, but failed to find the end zone.

Still scoreless in the 4th, Needham would reach the end zone with 6 minutes remaining for the game's first and final score. Quincy's Mecca Limage made a big block on the extra points attempt to keep Quincy within striking distance. Quincy's offense went right back to work and moved the ball back downfield on their next drive and again reached Needham's red zone with 3 minutes left in the game.

The drive and season ended for the Quincy United 5th graders when quarterback Ryan Sampson scrambled from the 15 and made a strong effort for the end zone but was stopped at the 1 yard line. "It was a full team effort on Sunday. The kids played as they did all season, with toughness and determination until the last second. The sky is the limit for this talented group of athletes, I'm already looking forward to next season," coach Dan Sampson said

CHARLIE BAKER rushes for a big gain for North, with a host of Natick defenders in pursuit.

NOEL SANCHO (18) runs the ball for North, as Ben Hudach (26), and Noah Baker (50) provide the blocking.

following the game.

Offensive standouts for Quincy were Limage, Johjoe Ham and Jonas Ala who combined for over 300 yards rushing while. Nick Ambroult had 75 yards receiving. Quincy offensive linemen won the battle in the trenches all day, led by Adam Austin, Gavin Brown, Dante Marinilli, Gavin Hutchings, and Breven Lyons. Defensively, Quincy got solid efforts from Patrick Conner, Blake Nelson, Eric Di Lima, Nicholas Spagnolo and Hailey Powers.

Cheerleading - Quincy Youth Cheer squads worked hard all season and that was on full display on Saturday as QYF Cheerleaders participated in the Regional Cheer Competition at Reggie Lewis Center in Boston. Quincy was well-represented at the Competition with all teams performing solid routines. The United U8 team finished 4th, while United U10 cheerleaders earned 1st place for their division. The U12 cheerleaders were 5th, U14 NQ Apache Cheerleaders were 3rd and U14 Jr Presidents came in 5th.

Quincy Youth Football will be putting its best foot forward as the host of the Super Bowls this Sunday. It should be a great day for youth football action for fans that want to come out to the games.

The schedule for the Super Bowls will be Grade 5, 10 a.m. Needham vs Wellesley, Grade 6, noon Framingham vs Milton, Grade 7 2 p.m., Natick vs Brockton, and Grade 8, 4 p.m. North Quincy vs Walpole.

QNQ sent its best seven boys and girls to the MIAA Eastern Mass Championships at Wrentham. Conditions were fine weather wise but the ground was muddy in places.

The boys finished 23rd as a team against 32 other schools. Robert Cannon finished 91st in 17:29 matching his best performance of the year in a highly competitive division where all 165 finishers were under 20 minutes. Of the 199 schools competing in Eastern Mass, QNQ was 63rd overall.

The girls team "limped" into the meet with 5 of 7 girls fighting some injury or another and finished 21st out of 30 schools. Top finisher was Lezly Acevedo 63rd in 21:10. Acevedo struggled with a hip injury over the final half of the season.

First year senior Skye Matranga was the one bright spot finishing in 23:46 her best performance of the season. The girls were 81st against 200 other schools in Eastern Mass.

"Brian is both an architect and a licensed construction supervisor, so he sees the details of a project from all sides while maintaining a high level of client advocacy, which are guiding principles of our firm," said Kerwin. "Working hard and working smart, he enjoys solving complex problems through all phases of the design, procurement and construction while remaining a dedicated client advocate."

Thanks in part to their unique approach to business, PCA360 received high marks from Quincy city officials, who held a formal dedication ceremony to celebrate the new school on October 27. Students moved into South-West in June, just prior to the end of the school year.

The South-West Middle School serves 350 students. During the construction of the new school, Laroche worked closely with Sterling students who formed the Junior Building Committee, established with the help of Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and Principal John Franceschini. The students were involved in the "topping off" ceremony, giving speeches on the history of the traditional project milestone. They also joined Laroche to deliver a project update to the Quincy School Committee.

"The Junior Building Committee students were super stars," said Laroche. "I was continually amazed by their communication skills."

He said it was rewarding to use the project as a way to help students learn about a range of subjects and also get a view into potential careers in the construction industry.

"I hope that the experience leads them to pursue a career in the construction or project management fields," said Laroche. "I know that when I was in middle school my art teacher exposed our class to the field of architecture with a project - and led me to my current profession. When students are exposed to many different opportunities and experiences during their formative years they realize that there are many more paths that they can take in their lives."

Elizabeth Stone House Honors Michael Fish

ELIZABETH STONE HOUSE in Roxbury, which provides residential and community-based services to help homeless and at-risk survivors of domestic violence and related trauma to achieve greater safety and stability, recently honored Michael Fish, president and CEO of Dellbrook JKS in Quincy, with its You Matter! Award. The award is given annually to an individual or organization that has made a significant contribution to the development of the Elizabeth Stone House. Fish has been instrumental in the planning and construction of the new Elizabeth Stone House that is currently being built at One Westminster Avenue in Roxbury. The new mixed-use building will allow the Elizabeth Stone House to greatly expand, offering 32 units of affordable housing, a licensed childcare center, and space to grow its services and community programming to serve more than 2,000 clients and community members each year. Frank J. Solazzo, 91

A funeral Mass for Frank J. "Sal" Solazzo, age 91, of Melbourne, Fla., formerly of Stoneham and Quincy, was celebrated Nov. 9 in St. Patrick Church, Stoneham.

Mr. Solazzo died Oct. 31.

He was the loving son of Antonio and Serafina (Grip-po). Loving husband of the late Jeanette C. (Ciulla) Solazzo and the late Janet M. (Mahoney) (Frank) Solazzo. Devoted father of the late Geraldine Carroll and her husband James of Stoneham, Michael of Wakefield, Frank Jr. and his wife Sharon of Peabody, Jeanette Anthony and her husband John of Melbourne, FL, Vincent and his wife Leigh of Melbourne, Michael Frank and his wife Azy of Whitman, Donna Galiano and her husband Sean of Weymouth and Patricia Harte of Brockton. Beloved brother of the late Michael Solazzo, Rose Solazzo, Mary Schilling, Mae Frank, and Nancy Grasso. Cherished grandfather of 12 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren and many loving nieces and nephews.

Born in the West End on Jan. 31, 1928, Mr. Solazzo left Boston Trade School early to enlist in the Navy after his older brother Michael was killed in action. He was deployed to the South Pacific until the war ended. He was honorably discharged after being exposed to high levels of radiation during Operation Crossroads in Bikini Atoll. Mr. Solazzo was given months to live but by the grace of God went on to live another 73 years.

He returned home to marry his true love Jeanette Ciulla. Mr. Solazzo was the consummate provider working multiple jobs to support his wife and their 5 children. In 1969 they opened Sal's Restaurant in Boston which he owned and operated for nearly 20 years. Several years after losing Jeanette to cancer, Mr. Solazzo married Janet Frank. He raised and cared for Janet's three children as his own.

His caring and compassion were matched only by his warmth and generosity. Mr. Solazzo was known and loved by many and will be truly missed.

Interment at Lindenwood Cemetery, Stoneham.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Clancy-Lucid Funeral Home, Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, 450 Brookline Ave., Boston, MA 02215.

Robert G. McGee

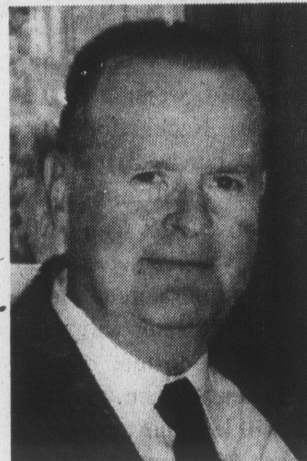

A funeral Mass for Robert G. McGee, retired Milton Fire Department, of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Mary Church, Quincy.

Mr. McGee died peacefully Nov. 6 with his loving family by his side.

He was born in Boston and was a graduate of Boston Technical High School. Mr. McGee was a 33-year member of the Milton Fire Department; retiring in 1995, and a late member of the Milton Firefighters Union Local #1116. He loved gardening, especially growing tomatoes, he loved dogs and would talk to any stranger who had a dog. He also was devoted to his family and the Fire Dept.

He was the beloved husband of Irene F. (Jarasitis) of Quincy; devoted father of Robert G. McGee, Jr. and his wife Joyce of Quincy, Christine M. Regan and her husband Mark of Weymouth and Donna L. McGee of Quincy; he was the cherished grandfather of Colleen McGee of Quincy, Caitlin and Jenna Regan of Weymouth; brother of Anne Scoble of Norwood, Richard McGee of Stoughton, his twin sister Jane Teevens of Quincy and Maureen Naz-zaro of Milton. He loved and adored his many nieces and nephews.

Mr. McGee was a true friend to all; he would always have an endless supply of index cards for notes and devil dogs to share with everyone. His true calling was the dog whisperer; he would always pull over if he saw a Lab to say hi, give a cookie and show his prized picture of his dogs Brandy and Shelby. His greatest pleasure was in the summer to grow his garden and his prized tomatoes that he would often leave in brown bags on family, friends and neighbor's porches. Mr. McGee loved yard sales and would have one every year with his best friend Bobby Bryon that he would always say he "sold good quality junk." Mr. McGee loved taking pictures and still used throw away cameras and called himself Flash McGee.

He liked to brag that he was 15 minutes younger than his twin sister Jane and he loved spending time with his children. Mr. McGee adored his granddaughters and was always with them, he taught Colleen and Caitlin to drive this summer and shared his love of gardening with Jenna teaching her his secrets for the best tomatoes, but most of all Mr. McGee loved his wife of 53 years Irene, his favorite time her was the weekends when they would go to lunch every Saturday and then on Sundays to their spot at Newcomb Farms for breakfast and then Kohls for shopping after. Mr. McGee was a family man and loved his wife, siblings, nieces, nephews, children, grandchildren, and friends, he will be truly missed by all.

Peter V. Belmonte Jr., 80

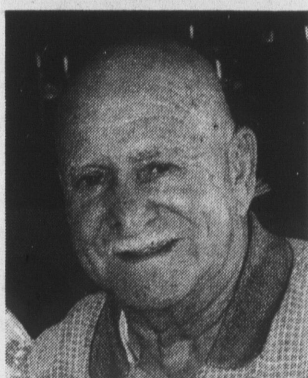

A funeral Mass for Peter V. Belmonte, Jr., 80, of Quincy and formerly of South Boston, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Belmonte died peacefully surrounded by his loving family on Nov. 4.

Born and raised in South Boston, he was the son of the late Peter V. and Fanny (Vella) Belmonte. He graduated from South Boston High School with the Class of 1958. Following high school, Mr. Belmonte joined the Sheet Metal Workers Local 17, soon became a foreman, and worked as a proud member for over 30 years. He enjoyed his work and the relationships he built over the years.

When Mr. Belmonte was younger, he played both the French horn and trumpet with the Lt. Norman Prince "Princemen" Drum and Bugle Corps. He was also a member of the first Little League team in Boston.

In his spare time, Mr. Belmonte enjoyed being at home with his family, especially his grandchildren who were his pride and joy.

PETER V. BELMONTE JR.

He loved his house and was proud of all the work he put into building it for his family. In his retirement, Mr. Belmonte and his wife enjoyed traveling and always planning their day with something fun to do.

He was a genuine, honest and selfless person. Everyone knew that he loved them by his actions and care he provided. There wasn't anything Mr. Belmonte wouldn't do for the people he loved and cared for. His love and strong work ethic are his legacy that continues through his children and grandchildren. He will be missed by all the lives he touched.

Mr. Belmonte was the beloved husband of Kathleen "Kathy" (O'Brien) Belmonte. The two married on Sept. 2, 1961, at Gate of Heaven Parish in South Boston. Together they shared 58 loving years of marriage. He was the devoted father of Lisa C. Belmonte of Quincy, Peter V. Belmonte III and his wife Sharon of Bridgewater and Michael J. Belmonte and his fiancée Christin Donovan of Plymouth. Mr. Belmonte was the loving grandfather of Michael J. Belmonte, Jr., Sean C. Belmonte and Amanda R. Belmonte, all of Rockland. He was the dear brother of Richard Belmonte of South Boston, Janice Belmonte of South Boston, the late Fay Medico and the late Thomas Belmonte. He is also survived by many loving nieces and nephews.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

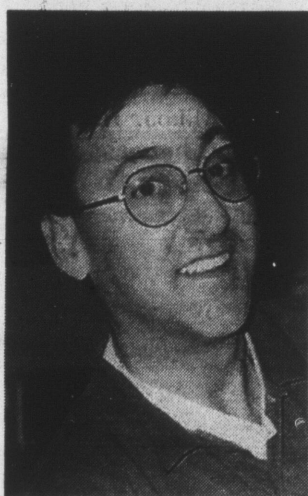

Memorial donations may be made to the American Heart Association, P.O. Box 417005, Boston, MA 02241-7005.

Stephen R. Doherty

A Mass of Christian Burial for Stephen R. Doherty, a lifelong resident of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mr. Doherty died suddenly Nov. 6.

Cherished father of James, Kathryn and Annie Doherty, all of Quincy. Previous husband and friend of Judy Doherty of Quincy. Beloved brother of Paul Doherty and his wife Margaret, Peter and his wife Cheryl all of Quincy. Uncle of Kristina, Michael and his wife Madeline. Son of the late Paul and Esther (Comeau) Doherty.

STEPHEN R. DOHERTY

Mr. Doherty was someone who can only be described as a character. He passed away from multiple health problems, most of them related to a life lived by his own rules. From feeding the wild fox outside his house, to piloting his beloved drone around the neighborhood, Mr. Doherty displayed the same love for the simple things across his daily life. Steve and all his quirks will be dearly missed by both family and friends.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Joseph M. Varraso, 93

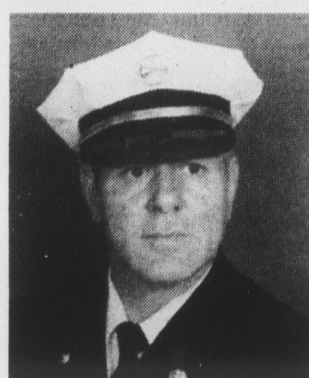

A funeral Mass for Joseph Michael Varraso, 93, of Hanover and formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Thomas More Church, Braintree.

Mr. Varraso died peacefully surrounded by his loving family on Nov. 6.

Born and raised in Quincy, he was the son of the late Joseph and Elizabeth (Lange) Varraso Clery.

He was a WWII veteran U.S. Army Air Corps. Following the service, his career was with the Quincy Fire Department where he retired as a lieutenant after 33 years.

In his spare time, Mr. Varraso enjoyed ballroom dancing, going to water aerobics, the New England Patriots, and traveling with his long-time companion Dot. He also enjoyed gambling and liked to visit the casinos.

JOSEPH M. VARRASO

Mr. Varraso was actively involved with the Braintree American Legion Post #86.

He was the beloved companion of Dorothy "Dot" White of Cummaquid and formerly of Braintree, with whom he shared many years. Mr. Varraso was the beloved husband of the late Helen (Reagan) Varraso. He was the devoted father of Nancy Cox of Quincy, Carol McLaughlin and her husband David of Kingston, and Joseph Varraso and his wife Maureen of Hanover. He was the loving Papa of Kevin, Michael and Brian McLaughlin, Christopher, Daniel, Joseph, Alicia, and Julia Varraso, and the loving great papa of Ava McLaughlin. He was the dear brother of Bill Varraso of Braintree, Al Varraso and his wife Carmela of Braintree and the late Jim "Duke" Varraso. He is also survived by many loving nieces, nephews, extended family and friends.

Gasoline Prices Up Three Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up three cents this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA Northeast's Nov. 12 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.51 per gallon. Massachusetts's price is 10 cents below the national average of $2.61. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 23 cents higher at $2.74 per gallon. "While most states are seeing more expensive gas prices on the week, the good news is the majority of increases were no more than a few pennies," said Mary Maguire, director, Public and Legislative Affairs. "Crude prices increased last week as a result of increased optimism that China and the U.S. — the world's two largest crude consumers — are continuing to resolve ongoing trade tensions."

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 76 cents, from a low of $2.29 to a high of $3.05. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area. Please remember to slow down and move over for any emergency vehicles on the side of the road.

Find the most up-to-date local gas prices with the AAA Fuel Finder by logging onto AAA.com and clicking on Gas Saving Tips & Tools.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A long-sought workplace change could be happening soon. Consider reworking your ideas and preparing a presentation just in case. A personal relationship takes a new turn.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your persuasiveness doesn't really start to kick in until midweek. By then, you can count on having more supporters in your camp, including some you doubted would ever join you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your workload is still high, but -- good news! -- you should start to see daylight by the week's end. Reserve the weekend for fun and games with friends and loved ones. You deserve it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Regardless of how frustrating things are, keep that "Crab" under control. A cutting comment you might think is apt right now will leave others hurting for a long time to come.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be more sensitive to the emotions of loved ones who might feel left out while you're stalking that new opportunity. Be sure to make it up to them this weekend. A nice surprise could be waiting.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The gregarious Virgo rarely has a problem making new friends. But repairing frayed relationships doesn't come easily. Still, if it's what you want to do, you'll find a way. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A misunderstanding with a partner or spouse needs to be worked out before it turns into something really nasty. Forget about your pride for now and make that first healing move.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Communication dominates the week. Work out any misunderstandings with co-workers. Also get back in touch with old friends and those family members you rarely see.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) As busy as your week is, make time for someone who feels shut out of your life. Your act of kindness could later prove to be more significant than you might have realized.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Congratulations. Your busy workweek leads to some very satisfying results. Sports and sporting events are high on your weekend activities aspect. Enjoy them with family and friends.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your generosity of spirit reaches out once again to someone who needs reassurance. There might be problems, but keeping that line of communication open eventually pays off.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You are among the truth-seekers in the universe, so don't be surprised to find yourself caught up in a new pursuit of facts to counter what you believe is an insidious exercise in lying.

BORN THIS WEEK: You believe in loyalty and in keeping secrets. All things considered, you would probably make a perfect secret agent.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- As Martin Scorsese and Francis Ford Coppola fight to retain the traditional release of films into movie theaters instead of streaming services, the last vestige of true movie stars (created by the major studios during the Golden Age of Hollywood) -- Jane Fonda (81), Shirley MacLaine (85), Sophia Loren (84) and Robert Redford (83) -- struggle to retain their stardom.

Jane Fonda starred last year in "The Book Club," with Diane Keaton, Candice Bergen and Mary Steenburgen, and has retained visibility thanks to the Netflix series "Grace and Frankie" (65 episodes and counting since 2015), with Lily Tomlin, and being arrested for protests such as the recent global warming demonstration. Shirley MacLaine starred in Hallmark's "A Heavenly Christmas" (2016), with Eric McCormack, Netflix's "The Little Mermaid" (2018) and in Disney's just-released "Noelle," with Anna Kendrick, Bill Hader and Julie Hagerty. Sophia Loren is shooting "The Life Ahead" (due in March), based on a Romain Gary novel and directed by her son Edoardo Ponti. Sophia, who plays a Holocaust survivor who forges a bond with a 12-year-old boy, vows it will be something to remember. Robert Redford's last film as an actor was "The Old Man & the Gun," but he couldn't resist doing cameos in "Avengers: Endgame" and the HBO series "Watchmen." A special mention for Olivia de Havilland, last surviving star of 1939's "Gone with the Wind," who turned 103 July 1 in Paris. Not to be outdone, two old pros, Angela Lansbury (94) and Dick Van Dyke (94 on Dec. 13), will finally get to see their 2018 Christmas film "Buttons," which was shown for only night in theaters last Dec. 8. The film, narrated by Robert Redford and Kate Winslet, and co-starring Jane Seymour and Roma Downey, will be released digitally Nov. 19 and on DVD Dec. 3.

Ben Affleck will star in and produce (with Matt Damon and Aaron Gilbert) "Falling to Earth," based on Kate Southwood's novel about the Tri-State Tornado, the deadliest in U.S. history. It hit Illinois in 1925, killing 695 people, injuring more than 2,000 and leveling a number of towns. "A Quiet Place: Part II" has completed filming in upstate New York, mostly around Buffalo. When John Krasinsky chose Buffalo as his main location, he created 400 hires of staff and technicians and 300 background extras, which pumped $10 million into the local economy. Shooting on the $1 million refurbished Buffalo Film Works soundstage was kept under wraps to keep spectators at bay, but that proved impossible when they shot on location (especially when they closed down the nearby Grand Island Bridge for 13 hours). Buffalo never looked so good and remains a very "Quiet Place."

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Bird Whistle --- "I bought a wooden whistle, but it wouldn't whistle" is part of an old children's song that goes on to joke about buying a metal whistle. But a modern metal whistle used by a policeman looks very different from the wooden whistle made centuries ago. And today, if a whistle is wood, it usually is carved into an interesting shape or painted to hide the wood surface.

Very early whistles were made from a hollow reed or bird bones. By the 17th century, ceramic whistles were made, often in the shape of an owl or other bird. The center of the whistle held water. Blowing into a hole on its back made the water move and make a sound. There also were wind whistles handmade or molded from clay. Many have been made since the 17th century, but few of the early clay bird whistles remain. Most are not marked, but are decorated with an identifiable regional design.

Today you can find a lot of whistles made of pot metal, celluloid or plastic. An unmarked earthenware bird whistle with colorful paint decoration was sold at a Hess Auction Group auction that featured Pennsylvania wares. The 4-inch-long bird sold for $212.

Q: I'd like information about a Mary Gregory vase I own. It's purple glass with white figures of a girl and boy playing tennis. The vase is cylindrical and is 8 inches tall and 5 inches in diameter. Can you tell me its age and value?

A: Mary Gregory glass was first made about 1870. Similar glass is being made today. All early Mary Gregory glass was made in Bohemia. Later it was made in several other European countries. The first American glassware with Mary Gregory-type decorations was made by the Westmoreland Glass Company beginning in 1957. These pieces had simpler designs, less enamel paint and more modern shapes. Vases like yours are worth about $300. The tennis game adds value.

Q: I've seen some interesting "antique" telephones online and was wondering if they work with modern wiring. I'd like to buy one if I can use it as a phone.

A: It depends on the mechanism and wiring in the phone. We tried hooking up two old phones and couldn't get either of them to ring. There are sites online that show how to rewire an old phone so it works, and there are companies that will do the work for you. They also have replacement parts.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was novelist, poet and playwright Gertrude Stein who made the following sage observation: "Everybody knows if you are too careful, you are so occupied in being careful that you are sure to stumble over something."

* If you're like the average American, you will eat about 150 bananas this year -- 26 pounds' worth.

* A researcher in Britain calculated that local farmland contains more than 2 million spiders per acre. Must be small ones, I'd say.

* Up until the 1500s, the accepted way of dealing with a patient who was hemorrhaging was to cauterize the wound, often with boiling oil or red-hot irons. It was in the latter part of the 16th century that a French surgeon named Ambroise Pare began tying off the broken blood vessels with cord. That's pretty much what surgeons do today.

* Some people enjoy novelty when dining out, but restaurateurs take a big risk when adding new items to a menu; it seems that less than a third of diners will actually try a new menu item.

* The White House was not designed by an American. It was Irish architect James Hoban who won the competition to create the architectural plans for the home of the political leader of the United States.

* The name of the state of Vermont comes from the French "mont vert," which means "green mountain." (If the explorers who named the state saw green mountains, they obviously were not there in the winter.)

* Two-thirds of all Tony award-winning composers and lyricists have been Jewish.

Thought for the Day: "I don't trust a man who uses the word evil 18 times in 10 minutes. If you're half evil, nothing soothes you more than to think the person you are opposed to is totally evil." -- Norman Mailer

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Do you butter your cheese? You might want to try it when you hear this tip from K.M. in Pennsylvania: "I was always taught to rub a bit of butter on the cut side of my cheese so that it would not dry out."

* "I love handmade whipped cream, but it's a little bit messy when it starts out. I throw a small kitchen towel over the mixer until it gets solid, and this has cut down substantially on mixer messes!" -- T.T. in Minnesota

* When static season hits, try this fun trick: Mix a liquid fabric softener and water in a 1 part to 4 parts ratio. Use this to spray carpets from time to time.

* Looking for a small eco-friendly swap? Try using biodegradable garbage bags. They are available at some grocery stores and at online retailers.

* "I have two guest bedrooms that hardly get used until holidays. I keep the beds made up, but when I am expecting guests I will usually strip the beds to freshen the sheets and blankets. I toss the sheets into the dryer with a fabric-softener sheet and hang the blanket outside in the sunshine for several hours. It always does the trick, and I don't need to wash linens that are already clean!" -- U.C. in California

* "When you get to the end of your bottle of shampoo or conditioner, just add a bit of water to the bottle, and then shake. You can get at least two more uses out of it, even if you think it's totally empty. Waste not, want not!" -- G.T. in Alabama

by Terry Stickels

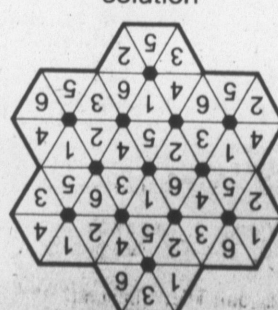

The Ardmore High School basketball team plays four 12-minute quarters. The head coach has three forwards on the team with equal ability. He wants all three forwards to rotate so that they play the same number of minutes each game.

How many minutes of playing time should each of the three forwards receive? Two of the forwards are always on the court at the same time.

or 32 minutes.

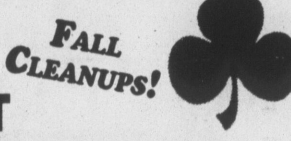

Each should play 32 minutes. There are 48 minutes in a game. Since only two forwards can play at any given time, and there are three forwards to split that time, each forward would play 2/3 of 48.

VETERANS, ELECTED OFFICIALS and other dignitaries pause as the Quincy High School chorus leads the singing of the national anthem at Monday's Veterans Day ceremony.

'Today Is Our Day To Say Thank You'

QUINCY VETERANS COUNCIL Vice Commander Robert LaFleur sounds "Taps" as a member of the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League, salutes at Monday's Veterans Day ceremony.

zens of the city of Quincy who have served this country and served it well," Nicholson said. "The city of Quincy will never forget that."

A sign reading "Welcome to Quincy, a Purple Heart City," was on display for the ceremony. Nicholson said that sign would soon be placed at the foot of the Neponset Bridge in North Quincy and another would be placed at the rotary at the base of the Fore River Bridge in Quincy Point.

"You will recognize coming and going that there is no more dedicated a city to veterans in the state than the city of Quincy," Nicholson said.

Mayor Thomas Koch, reflecting on a quote by George S. Patton, said all those who serve contribute to the war effort.

"General Patton once said that every soldier played a role in victory at war. Not everyone is on the front lines, but everyone plays a part," the mayor said.

"No matter the rank, when the individual raises their hand and swears allegiance to the country, they become veterans. To all of you veterans here, thank you for your service. To all of our veterans who continue to serve all across the world, we keep them in our prayers. We ask God to bless them and to continue to bless these United States of America."

Koch recognized two World War II veterans present on Monday, Russell Erikson and Rosario Santoro.

Erikson, 97, served in the Army Air Forces. He piloted a B-24 Liberator bomber during the war, flying 33 combat missions over Germany and Europe.

Santoro, 94, served in the Navy aboard a landing craft in the Philippines during the war. He was one of eight brothers who served the country in the Second World War.

Erikson, following the ceremony, said Monday was a wonderful day.

"It was a wonderful day," he said. "There was no rain, no snow, and a good crowd showed up."

Erikson was the keynote speaker during the city's Veterans Day observance in 2016. He hopes to speak again three years from now, when he will be 100.

"I've been working on it for a while," he said.

City Council President Brad Croall said veterans make many sacrifices when they opt to serve the nation.

"I've been reflecting intently on all the sacrifices a veteran makes when answering the call of duty," he said. "Of course, risking one's life is the greatest sacrifice one is willing to make. But these soldiers also sacrificed weddings, births, first steps, graduations and other key life events they put on hold while serving their country."

"Considering the total act of selflessness to serve, I truly feel blessed to live in a city that so actively encourages the recognition of our modern day heroes."

The Rev. John Swanson, the chaplain of the Quincy Veterans' Council, delivered the invocation and benediction Monday.

"Keep us ever mindful that the cliché 'freedom isn't free' is true," he said in the invocation. "Today we remember those who died and left no name, but yet they have gifted us with this nation."

Peter Walsh, the commander of the QVC, thanked those in attendance for their presence.

"I want to say happy Veterans Day to my fellow veterans," he added, "and thank those who are still serving for their service."

Two wreaths were placed at the foot of the World War II monument during the ceremony.

Gold Star Mother Angela Durkin - whose daughter Ciara was killed in September 2007 while serving in Afghanistan - placed a Gold Star wreath with assistance from George Bouchard, Quincy's grave registration officer.

Walsh and Charles Hurd, who served as Commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council in 2014, placed a red, white and blue wreath in front of the monument.

The Second Marine Division fired a volley after the wreaths were placed and Robert LaFleur sounded "Taps."

The Quincy High School choir concluded the ceremony with the singing of the national anthem.
